Medical Transfer and Partnership.

32, LUDGATE HILL.

MESSRS. ORRIDGE & Co., Medical Agents and Valuers, in offering their services to the Profession, have pleasure in referring to the fact, that for upwards of thirty years the name of Mr. ORRIDGE has been known in the advertising columns of the leading medical journals as that of one to whom a very large proportion of the medical men throughout the kingdom have confided their interests in the adjustment of PARTNERSHIP and TRANSFERS.

Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. have the honour of being permitted to give reference to the testimony of those for whom they have been thus concerned during this lengthened period—a privilege that they trust will be regarded as a conclusive proof of the sincerity of their endeavours to conduct these transactions in an honourable and straightforward manner.

Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. take leave to point out that the instrumentality of their extensive connexion enables them to offer peculiar advantages in the furtherance of their respective objects to those who are about to RECEIVE PARTNERS or to RELINQUISH or to COMMENCE practice.

Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. are fully aware of the evil of an undue publicity in negotiations relating to Medical Practices, and every care is taken that particulars entrusted to them are submitted only to suitable applicants, the private nature of the information given being strictly enjoined.

Purchasers who will communicate (confidentially) the nature and extent of their wishes regarding investment can be apprised of appropriate opportunities as they occur.

On occasions where ADVICE is required in forming a correct conclusion as to the worth or eligibility of a Practice, Messrs. ORRIDGE & Co. trust that their familiarity with the various contingencies that govern value will be found of considerable service to those by whom they are employed.

N.B.—No charge to purchasers.

AN ATLAS OF HUMAN ANATOMY,

ILLUSTRATING

Most of the Ordinary Dissections and many not usually Practised by the Student,

ACCOMPANIED BY

AN EXPLANATORY TEXT.

BY

RICKMAN JOHN GODLEE, M.S., F.R.C.S.

Fellow of University College; Assistant-Surgeon to University College Hospital, and Senior Demonstrator of Anatomy in University College.

The object of the Author in bringing before the profession this Series of Plates, is, in the first place, to supply a full illustration of the Anatomy of the Human Body in a form sufficiently portable to be easy of reference. In the second place, it is intended, by illustrating Dissections not usually seen in the dissecting-room, to enable the student to understand the mutual relations of parts, which, by following the ordinary course of instruction, he is apt to regard as separate and independent. And, in the third place, it is hoped that, by making the Dissections follow one after another, in as many places as possible, he may find some assistance in working out for himself the steps by which particular organs and regions may be exposed.

The number of Parts will be 12 or 13, each containing four Plates. They will illustrate Dissections of the head and neck (excluding the brain), the upper and lower limbs, and the thorax and abdomen from the front and from behind.

The letterpress will contain a description of the manner in which the Dissections were made, of the structures exposed, as well as references to their medical and surgical anatomy.

Parts I. and II. are now ready, and it is intended to bring out the Parts at bi-monthly intervals till the work is finished.

 To the Subscribers to "Ziemssen's Cyclopædia of the Practice of Medicine."

It will be remembered that in the early announcements of this great work subscribers were promised fifteen volumes of from 500 to 700 pages each; very soon, however, after the translation had been commenced, it became apparent that the German authors were not restricting themselves closely to the proposed limits, and that the volumes were not only very much larger, but supplementary ones were being added to the series.

A proposition to abridge or condense in this translation met with a very general objection. The Publishers have therefore done their utmost in endeavouring, while giving every line of the original, to confine the work within the advertised limits. At wholly unexpected, and very largely increased cost, volume after volume of nearly 1000 pages has been published; but, notwithstanding this fact, the Publishers still find themselves obliged very reluctantly to extend the work to seventeen volumes. The work in the German, with the exception of the volume on Skin Diseases, by Prof. Rindfleisch and von Ziemssen, is practically finished, so that it is absolutely certain that seventeen volumes will complete the work.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.—TO MEET THE CONVENIENCE of those new Subscribers who may not desire to acquire at once the volumes already issued, the Publishers are prepared to deliver these volumes at monthly intervals, until the current volume has been caught up. Subscribers desirous of availing themselves of this arrangement should specify the intervals on their order forms. Unless this is done, the Publishers will consider that all the volumes issued are to be delivered at once.

Prospectuses, giving the names of the Authors of the various sections, and Specimen Pages will be forwarded on application to the Publishers,

"This book is emphatically a work of reference, and one which no student, and certainly no teacher, of pathology should fail to have constantly beside him."—THE LANCET, Oct. 7, 1876.

Now ready, in one royal 8vo. Volume of over 700 pp., cloth bound, price 25s. post free.

A MANUAL OF GENERAL PATHOLOGY

FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS AND PRACTITIONERS.

By Ernst Wagner, M.D., Prof. of General Pathology and Pathological Anatomy in the University of Leipsic; Director of the Medical Polyclinic of Leipsic. Translated from the Sixth German Edition by John van Duyn, A.M., M.D., and E. C. Seguin, M.D.

For the Review from which the following Extracts are taken, see The Lancet for Oct. 7, 1876, p. 506

"Every student of Pathology will gladly hail the appearance of this well-known and admirable work in an English dress.

"Of the intrinsic merits of the work itself it is hardly necessary to speak, for ever since the first edition appeared, fourteen years ago, it has been the leading book of reference on the subjects upon which it treats. This labour, however, has been undertaken with the same care and thoroughness that were such marked features of the original work, and the result is that the present edition is as complete an exposition of the pathology of to-day as could be desired.

"The work is divided into four parts. Part I. deals with General Nosology, and consists of an introductory thesis upon diagnosis, prognosis, course and terminations of disease, &c. Part II. is entitled General Etiology, and contains an excellent account of predisposing and exciting causes of disease, which must be as invaluable to the lecturer on systematic medicine as the subsequent chapters are to the teacher of pathology. Individual and social hygienics here find a place. . . . Part III. is the most valuable to the pathological student, as it is the most elaborate portion of the book. It is entitled General Pathological Anatomy and Physiology. . . . The subjects of the Fourth Part, which deals with the Pathology of the Blood, include an exhaustive account of the febrile process, which, like the other portions of the work, is a very mine of historical research. . . . ."—The Lancet.

☞ This important Work will be sent to any part of the United Kingdom, post free, on receipt of post-office order for its price—25s.—by the Publishers,

REGISTRATION.

Who are entitled to be Registered.—Every person possessing one or more of the following qualifications is entitled, on payment of a fee of 2*l.* in respect of qualifications obtained before January 1st, 1859, and of 5*l.* in respect of qualifications obtained since that date, to be registered, on producing to the registrar of the Branch Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland, the document conferring or evidencing the qualification, or each of the qualifications, in respect whereof he seeks to be registered; or upon transmitting by post to such registrar information of his name and address, and evidence of the qualification or qualifications in respect whereof he seeks to be registered, and of the time or times at which the same was or were, respectively, obtained;—a. Fellow, Member, Licentiate, or Extra-Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians of London. b. Fellow, Member, or Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh. c. Fellow, or Licentiate of the King and Queen's College of Physicians of Ireland. d. Fellow, or Member, or Licentiate in Midwifery, of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. e. Fellow, or Licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh. f. Fellow, or Licentiate of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow. g. Fellow, or Licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. h. Licentiate of the Society of Apothecaries, London. i. Licentiate of the Apothecaries' Hall, Dublin. j. Doctor, or Bachelor, or Licentiate of Medicine, of any University of the United Kingdom. k. Licentiate in Surgery of any University in Ireland, legally authorized to grant a licence in surgery. l. Doctor of Medicine, by doctorate granted prior to the 2nd of August, 1858, by the Archbishop of Canterbury. m. Doctor of Medicine of any foreign, or colonial university or college, practising as a physician in the United Kingdom before October 1st, 1858, who produces certificates, to the satisfaction of the Council, of his having taken such degree after regular examination, or who satisfies the Council that there is sufficient reason for admitting him to be registered. n. Bachelor in Surgery of any University in the United Kingdom legally authorized to confer such degree. The above-mentioned colleges and other bodies may transmit from time to time, to the registrar of the Branch Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland, lists, certified under their respective seals, of the several persons who, in respect of qualifications granted by such colleges and bodies respectively, are, for the time being, entitled to be registered, stating the respective qualifications, and places of residence of such persons; and thereupon, and upon payment of the proper fee, such registrar will enter in the register the persons mentioned in such lists, with their qualifications and places of residence, without other application in relation thereto. The powers of these bodies to grant qualifications for registration extends to the granting of any qualification for registration granted by such body to all persons, without distinction of sex. Persons who were actually practising medicine in England before August 1st, 1815, are entitled to be registered upon payment of a fee of 2*l.*, and upon producing to the registrar of the Branch Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland, or upon transmitting to him by post, together with information of name and address, the following declaration duly signed:—To the Registrar of the Medical Council.—I, , residing at , in the county of , hereby declare that I was practising as a medical practitioner, at , in the county of , before the first day of August, 1815. (Signed.) [Name.] Dated this day of , 18 . Persons who, on or before October 1st, 1858, held appointments as surgeons or assistant-surgeons in the Army, Navy, or Militia, or in the service of the East India Company, or who were acting, on or before that date, as surgeons in the public service, or in the service of any charitable institution, are entitled to be registered on the production of evidence, satisfactory to the Branch Council to which application may be made, that there is sufficient ground for directing such registration to be made. Persons who were practising medicine or surgery within the United Kingdom, on foreign or colonial diplomas or degrees, before 2nd August, 1858, are entitled to be registered, if they obtained such diplomas or degrees after regular examination at the seat of the university or college which granted the same. Any registered person who obtains any higher degree, or any of the qualifications mentioned above, other than the qualification in respect of which he was registered, is entitled to have such higher degree or additional qualification inserted in the register, in substitution of, or in addition to the qualification previously registered, on payment of a fee of 5*s.* Any person claiming to be entitled to be registered on account of any qualification, or to be entitled to have any additional qualification added to his name, after the first registration, is bound to satisfy the registrar, by proper evidence, that he is entitled to such qualification. Any appeal from the decision of the registrar may be decided by the General Council, or by the Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland (as the case may be); and any entry which may be proved, to the satisfaction of such General Council, or Branch Council, to have been fraudulently or incorrectly made, may be erased from the register, by order in writing of such General Council, or Branch Council. When the registrar of a Branch Council inserts in, and afterwards, by order of such Branch Council, and without notice to the party registered, strikes out of the register the description of a qualification which the evidence produced to the registrar by the claimant did not show that he had obtained, the Court will not, by Mandamus, compel the registrar to re-insert such description. Any person wilfully procuring, or attempting to procure himself to be registered, by making or producing, or causing to be made or produced, any false or fraudulent representation or declaration, either verbally or in writing, and any person aiding and assisting him therein, is liable, on conviction, to be sentenced to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding twelve months.

Registration of Colonial Practitioners.—Every colonial legislature has full power, from time to time, to make laws for the purpose of enforcing the registration, within its jurisdiction, of medical practitioners, including persons who have been registered under the "Medical Act;" but any person who has been duly registered under that Act is entitled to be registered in any colony, upon payment of the fees (if any) required for such registration, and upon proof, in such manner the colonial legislature may direct, of his registration under the said Act. This does not apply the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man.

Powers of the General Council over the Licensing and Qualifying Bodies.—The several colleges and bodies authorized to grant the qualifications which entitle the holders thereof to be registered are bound, from time to time, when required by the General Council, to furnish such Council with such information as they may require, as to the courses of study and examinations to be gone through to obtain the respective qualifications, and the ages at which such courses of study and examination are required to be gone through, and such qualifications are conferred, and, generally, as to the requisites for obtaining such qualifications. Any member or members of the General Council, or any person or persons deputed for the purpose by such Council, or by any Branch Council, may attend and be present at any such examinations. Whenever it may appear to the General Council that the course of study and examinations to be gone through, in order to obtain any such qualification from any such college or body, are not such as to secure the possession by persons obtaining such qualification of the requisite knowledge and skill for the efficient practice of their profession, the General Council may represent the same to the Privy Council. The Privy Council may, upon any such representation, if it see fit, order that any qualification granted by such college or body, after such time as may be mentioned in the order, shall not confer any right to be registered. Her Majesty may, however, with the advice of her Privy Council, when it is made to appear to her, upon further representation from the General Council, or otherwise, that such college or body has made effectual provision, to the satisfaction of the General Council for the improvement of such course of study or examinations, or the mode of conducting such examinations, revoke any such order. After the time mentioned in any such Order in Council, no person is entitled to be registered in respect of any such qualification, as in such order mentioned, granted by the college or body to which such order relates, after the time therein mentioned; and the revocation of any such order does not entitle any person to be registered in respect of any qualification granted before such revocation. Whenever it may appear to the General Council that an attempt has been made by any body entitled to grant qualifications to impose upon any candidate offering himself for examination an obligation to adopt, or refrain from adopting, the practice of any particular theory of medicine or surgery, as a test or condition of admitting him to examination, or of granting a certificate, the General Council may represent the same to the Privy Council. The Privy Council may, upon any such representation, issue an injunction to such body so acting, directing them to desist from such practice, and, in the event of their not complying therewith, order that such body shall cease to have the power of conferring any right to be registered, so long as they shall continue such practice. All the above-mentioned powers of the Privy Council may be exercised by any three or more of the Lords and others of the Privy Council, the Vice-President of the Committee of the Privy Council on Education being one of them; and all the above-mentioned orders and acts of the Privy Council are deemed sufficiently made and signified by a written or printed document, signed by one of the clerks of the Privy Council, or such officer as may be appointed by the Privy Council in such behalf; and all orders and acts made or signified by any written or printed document purporting to be so signed, are deemed to have been duly made, issued, and done by the Privy Council; and every such document is evidence in all courts, and before all justices and others, without proof of the authority or signature of such clerk, or other officer, or other proof whatsoever, until it is shown that such document was not duly signed by the authority of the Privy Council.

UNREGISTERED AND UNQUALIFIED PRACTITIONERS.

Registration is not compulsory upon medical men, nor can any penalties be inflicted upon an unregistered person, who, having obtained a qualification in medicine or surgery, practises according to such qualification. No unregistered person, however, can recover any charge, in any court of law, for any medical or surgical advice or attendance, or for the performance of any operation, or for any medicine which he has both prescribed and supplied, whether he be qualified or unqualified. Neither may any unregistered person hold any appointment either as a physician, surgeon, or other medical officer, either in the military or naval service, or in emigrant or other vessels, or in any hospital, infirmary, dispensary, or lying-in hospital not supported wholly by voluntary contributions, or in any lunatic asylum, gaol, house of correction, house of industry, parochial union, workhouse, or poor-house, parish, union, or other public establishment, body, or institution, or to any friendly or other society for affording mutual relief in sickness, infirmity, or old age, or as a medical officer of health. Neither is any certificate required by any Act of Parliament from any medical practitioner valid, if signed by an unregistered person. There is nothing, therefore, to prevent a qualified but unregistered person from keeping an open surgery and doing a ready-money business. A person who practises medicine or surgery, without having obtained the necessary diploma or licence, is, of course, debarred from recovering any fees or charges. He may, moreover, be proceeded against for penalties by any of the medical or surgical corporate bodies whose jurisdiction he may infringe. These rights have, however, rarely been exercised of late years, except by the Society of Apothecaries, which still frequently sues for penalties against persons practising without its licence. The practice of an apothecary may now be said to consist in attending and advising patients afflicted with diseases requiring medical (as distinguished from surgical) treatment, and prescribing, compounding, and supplying medicines for their cure or relief. The class of cases which it is the province of the apothecary to treat includes most of the diseases by which the human frame is affected; for instance, diseases of the brain, the lungs, the heart, the stomach, the liver, and the bowels, when the disorder is unattended by any external wound, sore, or tumour, and when medical treatment, unaided by any manual operation, is called for. A penalty of 20*l.* may be inflicted, for every such offence, upon any person acting or practising as an apothecary in England or Wales, without the licence of the Society, and a penalty of 5*l.*, for every such offence, upon any person acting as assistant to an apothecary to compound and dispense medicines, without having obtained the certificate of the Society. The Society can, therefore, afford no protection against practice by bone-setters, and that class of persons, but it can supply an efficient safeguard against irregular practice by chemists and druggists, for it has been held that a chemist who not only sells but also applies and administers medicines, in the ordinary course of attending patients, practises as an apothecary, and is not exempt from the penalty. Any person who wilfully and falsely pretends to be, or takes or uses the name or title of a physician, doctor of medicine, licentiate in medicine and surgery, bachelor of medicine, surgeon, general practitioner, or apothecary, or any name, title, addition, or description implying that he is a registered person, or that he is recognised by law as a physician, a surgeon, a licentiate in medicine and surgery, or a practitioner in medicine, or an apothecary, may, upon a summary conviction for such offence, be fined a sum not exceeding 20*l.* Convictions, in suits to recover this penalty, are not, however, easily obtained, as there must be unequivocal evidence that the party wilfully and falsely pretended. It is not enough, for instance, to prove that he is called a surgeon by persons whom he has attended professionally, in the absence of evidence to show that he has done so on his own account and for his own profit.

UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT.

It is provided by the Medical Act, that "if any registered medical practitioner shall be convicted in England or Ireland of any felony or misdemeanor, or in Scotland of any crime or offence, or shall, after due inquiry, be judged by the General Council to have been guilty of infamous conduct in any professional respect, the General Council may, if they see fit, direct the registrar to erase the name of such medical practitioner from the register." This applies to conduct of which the practitioner was guilty before as well as after registration. The General Council are the sole judges of whether a practitioner has been guilty of conduct infamous in a professional respect. They are bound to allow the accused person an opportunity of being heard in his defence, and it is their custom to allow him to appear by attorney, but not by counsel. The Medical Act further provides, that if any of the recognised colleges or medical or surgical bodies at any time exercise any power they possess by law of striking off from the list of such college or body the name of any one of their members, such college or body shall signify to the General Council the name of the member so struck off; and that the General Council may, if they see fit, direct the registrar to erase forthwith from the register the qualification derived from such college or body, in respect of which such member was registered, and that the registrar shall note the same therein. The name of no person may, however, be removed from the register on the ground of his having adopted any theory of medicine or surgery. Any application for the removal of a name from the register is investigated, in the first instance, by the Branch Council of that part of the kingdom in which the person whose name is proposed to be removed resides, and a statement of the case, and of the evidence in support of it, is then sent up by such Branch Council to the registrar of the General Council. The registrar, if so directed, then summons the person against whom the proceedings have been instituted to attend the General Council. When the Council remove the name of any person from the register, they send due intimation thereof to the various recognised colleges and medical and surgical bodies, accompanied by a recommendation that such person shall not be admitted to examination for any new qualification without the consent of the General Council.

LIABILITY FOR NEGLIGENCE AND MALAPRAXIS.

Every medical practitioner who, by a culpable want of attention and care, or by the absence of a competent degree of skill and knowledge, causes injury to a patient, is liable to a civil action for damages, even where the patient neither employed nor was to pay him, unless such injury be the immediate result of intervening negligence on the part of the patient himself, or unless such patient has, by his own carelessness, directly conduced to such injury. A surgeon does not undertake that he will perform a cure, nor does he undertake to use the highest possible degree of skill; but he undertakes to bring a fair, reasonable, and competent degree of skill; and in such an action the question is, whether the injury must be referred to the want of a proper degree of skill and care in the defendant or not. A medical man who is guilty of gross negligence, or evinces a gross want of knowledge of his profession, is criminally responsible for the consequences, but he is not liable to a criminal investigation for every slip. It must be a substantial thing. The distinction between actionable and criminal negligence cannot be defined, except so far as to say that to constitute the latter there must be such a degree of complete negligence as the law means by the word "felonious." The American courts have laid down that only "ordinary" skill and diligence are required of physicians and surgeons, and that their responsibility is not to be measured by the same rules that apply to mechanics and artizans.

INOCULATION WITH THE SMALL-POX.

Inoculating with the small-pox is now a criminal offence, and any person producing or attempting to produce, in any person, by inoculation with variolous matter, or by wilful exposure to variolous matter, or to any matter, article, or thing impregnated with variolous matter, or wilfully, by any other means whatsoever, producing the disease of small-pox in any person, may be proceeded against summarily, and is liable, upon conviction, to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding one month.

VIVISECTION.

By "The Cruelty to Animals Act, 1876" (39 & 40 Vict. c. 77), painful experiments on animals are prohibited, under heavy penalties, except subject to the restrictions imposed by the Act. The restrictions are that the experiment must, in every case, be for medical or physiological purposes; that the operator must be licensed under the Act; that the animal must be under an anæsthetic, and must be killed before it recovers therefrom if it be seriously injured, or the pain be likely to continue; and that the experiment must not be performed as an illustration of a public lecture, or for the purpose of attaining manual skill. Most of these restrictions may, however, be relaxed on a certificate being obtained, in manner provided by the Act, setting forth valid reasons for such relaxation. There are also special restrictions as to the performance of painful experiments on horses, asses, mules, dogs, and cats. No public exhibition of painful experiments may be given or advertised. Persons aiding in performing such experiments illegally are subject to penalties. Licences are granted by the Secretary of State, who has powers to compel the registry of places in which such experiments are to be performed, to cause such places to be visited by inspectors, and to direct any person making such experiments to report the results to him. Applications for licences must be signed by one or more of the presidents of certain medical, surgical, and scientific bodies specified in the Act, and countersigned by a University professor of physiology, medicine, anatomy, medical jurisprudence, materia medica, or surgery, not being the applicant himself. A judge has power to license such experiments when he deems them essential for the purposes of justice in a criminal case. No prosecution under the Act can be instituted against a licensed person without the assent in writing of the Secretary of State. The Act does not apply to invertebrate animals.

Digitized by Google

REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

It is now the duty of a medical man who has been present at the birth of a child, "in default of the father and mother," to give notice of the birth to the registrar within forty-two days, and to sign the register in his presence. If no notice has been given by any one within the forty-two days, the registrar may, by notice in writing, require such medical man (amongst other persons) to attend personally at his office and give him the necessary information, to the best of his knowledge and belief, as to the particulars required to be registered. The official instructions to registrars, however, enjoin upon them not to call upon persons present at the birth until they have failed to obtain the information from both the parents and the occupiers; so that, in practice, medical men are not likely to be often troubled in this respect. A medical man who has been present at a death in a house, must, "in default of the nearest relatives of the deceased present at the death or in attendance during the last illness, and in default of any other such relatives within the same sub-district," give to the registrar, within five days, information, to the best of his knowledge and belief, of the facts concerning the death required to be registered, and must sign the register in his presence. If notice of the death, and a medical certificate of the cause thereof, be sent to the registrar within five days, the other particulars may be given within fourteen days from the death. If no information be given by any one within fourteen days from the death, the registrar may, by notice in writing, require the medical man who was present at the death (amongst other persons) to attend personally at his office and give the necessary information.

The above regulations apply to medical men regarded merely in the light of "persons present at the birth or death."

With respect to certificates of the cause of death, every registered practitioner is entitled to demand to be supplied gratis with printed forms of such certificates by the registrar of the sub-district in which he resides or practises, and any practitioner who has been in attendance during the last illness of any person, must, after the decease of such person (except where an inquest is held on the body), sign and give to some person required to give information concerning the death, one of such certificates, stating, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the cause of death. Such certificate is entered in the register, together with the name of the certifying practitioner. A penalty of 40*s.* may be inflicted for refusing or failing to give such certificate. There is also a penalty not exceeding 40*s.* for failing to comply with a requisition of, or refusing to answer questions lawfully put by, a registrar. For wilfully giving a false answer to the registrar, or giving false information, or making a false certificate, a penalty not exceeding 10*l.* may be inflicted, or, on indictment, a term of imprisonment or of penal servitude may be awarded for any such offence. The indictment must be commenced within three years after the commission of the offence. A medical man attending during the last illness and until the death of any person in Scotland must, under a penalty of 40*s.*, within seven days after such death, transmit to the registrar a certificate of such death in a particular form, copies of which are supplied to him by the registrar. The same duty is imposed by statute upon medical practitioners in Ireland, but no penalty for non-compliance is laid down by the Act.

DUTY OF MEDICAL MEN AS WITNESSES.

Coroners' Inquests.—The following are the chief provisions of the Medical Witnesses' Acts, by which the Coroner is empowered to issue his order for the attendance of medical practitioners at inquests. Whenever upon the holding of any Coroner's Inquest it appears that the deceased person was attended at his death, or during his last illness, by any legally qualified medical practitioner, the Coroner may issue his order for the attendance of such practitioner as a witness; and if such person was not so attended, then the order may issue for the attendance of any legally qualified practitioner in actual practice in or near the place where the death happened. The majority of jurymen at such an inquest may also call for the evidence of such other medical witnesses as they may desire. The Coroner may also direct the performance of a post-mortem examination, with or without an analysis of the contents of the stomach or intestines. When the Coroner's order for the attendance of a medical practitioner at an Inquest has been personally served upon such practitioner, or where any such order has been received by such practitioner in sufficient time for him to have obeyed such order, or where any such order has been served at his residence; and, in every case, where he has not obeyed such order, he is liable to a penalty of 5*l.* for such neglect or disobedience, which may be enforced by distress. The Coroner is bound to issue his summons according to a prescribed form, and any other description of order would be invalid, and no penalty could be inflicted on a medical man disobeying an order not drawn up according to the statutory form. The following is the Form of Order:—"Coroner's Inquest at ——, upon the body of ——. By virtue of this my order, as Coroner for ——, you are required to appear before me and the jury at ——, on the —— day of ——, at —— of the clock, to give evidence touching the cause of death of —— [and make, or assist in making, a post-mortem examination of the body, with (without) an analysis], and report thereon at the said Inquest. (Signed) A. B., Coroner. To ——, Surgeon [or M.D.]." A medical man should remember that in giving evidence before a Coroner, he is, in all cases likely to end in a committal of the accused person, virtually delivering it before a judge of assize; and this fact alone, if not a respect for the Court, should induce him to give the evidence guardedly, and with a due consideration to the serious results to which it may ultimately lead. A hasty opinion may involve the accused in a charge of manslaughter, and, though it may lead to no worse result, may be the means of causing the person charged to be imprisoned for some months previously to the trial. An opinion as to the cause of death should not be given without making an inspection of the body. No man is compellable to give an opinion upon insufficient data, and if by the institution of a judicial inquiry there are grounds for believing that a death has not been natural, no medical opinion of the cause should be given in the absence of an inspection. Such an opinion must always be conjectural, and may involve the medical man in an unpleasant responsibility.

Medical Reports.—A medical witness will do well to remember also, that copies of his report and depositions, either before a Coroner or Magistrate, are usually placed in the hands of counsel, as well as of the Court, and that his evidence, as it is given at the trial, is compared word for word with that which has already been put on record. In drawing up medical reports for Inquests, or for other legal purposes, care should be taken to avoid exaggerated language and the too free use of technical terms, and to keep facts distinct from comments. The former may be useful as evidence, the latter are inadmissible. As a rule, nothing should be entered in a report which is not connected with the subject of inquiry, and which has not actually fallen under the observation of the reporter. The introduction of hearsay statements should be carefully avoided. In a medical report of an analysis in a case of suspected poisoning, it is not necessary that all the details of the analysis should be entered. A general statement of the results, to the effect that certain tests and processes have been used, will be sufficient. A medical man who neglects this rule, simply furnishes materials for a cross-examination to "medical counsel" acting only in the interests of a prisoner.

Subpœnas—Expenses.—A medical man is not bound to attend as witness at a trial, except upon a subpœna. The subpœna should be served a reasonable time before trial, to enable him to put his affairs in such order that his attendance on the Court may be as little detrimental as possible to his interests. His reasonable expenses should be tendered to him at the time when he is served with the subpœna, in civil cases, or at least a reasonable time before the trial, and even though he actually appear, he cannot be attached for declining to give evidence, unless these charges be paid or tendered, but the objection that his expenses have not been paid must be raised before he has been sworn. In criminal cases, no tender of fees is necessary, except in the case of witnesses living in one distinct part of the United Kingdom being required to attend subpœnas directing their attendance in another, who are not liable to punishment for disobedience of the process, unless, at the time of service, a reasonable and sufficient sum of money to defray their expenses in coming, attending, and returning have been tendered to them. In cases of summary convictions, the making or not making an order for costs is in the discretion of the magistrates, and the Secretary of State cannot interfere with them. In all cases in which separate subpœnas are served fixing trials for the same time, the civil should give way to the criminal case. If the subpœnas are for two civil or two criminal cases, the course of a witness should be to attend to that in which the subpœna was first served upon him.

Medical Jurisprudence.—No member of the medical profession should be without some knowledge of the science of medical jurisprudence. Few medical men who have been long engaged in the practice of the profession have not found themselves occasionally placed in situations of difficulty from the accidental occurrence of cases demanding medico-legal investigation. A medical practitioner who thinks himself secure in the most retired corner of the kingdom, is liable to find himself suddenly summoned as a witness on a trial, to answer questions which perhaps during a long period of practice he has been led to regard as trifling and unimportant. Under the circumstances, if he be destitute of medico-legal knowledge, it is scarcely possible that he can avoid exposing his deficiencies, and thus a guilty man may escape punishment or an innocent man be condemned, whilst his own reputation may be seriously injured; for it is certain that his qualifications as a physician, surgeon, or general practitioner, however great, will not shield him from general reprobation. The first duty of a medical jurist is to cultivate a faculty of minute observation of medical and moral circumstances. This, when combined with a general knowledge of what the law requires as evidence, will enable him to meet in a satisfactory manner all the scientific questions that may be necessary for the elucidation of a case. A medical man, when he sees a dead body, should notice everything. The condition and position of the body of a person dead from wounds, the position of a weapon, and the state of the dress and weapon, as well as the form and direction of the wound itself, should be marked with accuracy. It should not be left to policemen to say whether there were any marks of blood on the dress or on the hands of the deceased, or on the furniture in the room. With reference to the body, observation should be made at the time of the visit, whether any part of it is cold or warm, and whether the limbs are cold and rigid, or cold and pliant.

Digitized by Google

Notes.—As a matter of practice, a medical man will find it extremely convenient, in any case with regard to which he may be likely to be called upon to give evidence in the future, to draw up a report or memorandum of facts and appearances while they are fresh in his recollection, for such facts and appearances are generally so minute and detailed that they cannot with safety be entrusted to the memory; and although the witness may not be allowed to read such a report as part of his evidence, yet he will always be at liberty to refer to it, even in the witness-box, for the purpose of refreshing and assisting his memory.

General Rules.—A medical witness should bear in mind that he should be well prepared on all parts of the subject on which he is about to give evidence. A man, whether learned or not, whether in Court or out of Court, will talk clearly upon a subject he well understands, whether scientific or otherwise; but unless it is clear in his own mind, his account of it will be confused and unsatisfactory. The case should be viewed in all possible aspects before entering the witness-box, and if an opinion has been formed it should be dealt with and criticised as if it were that of an adversary. As in controversy, a disputant should put himself as much as possible into the position of his antagonist, and see the question from his point of view. The demeanour of a medical witness should be that of an educated man, and suited to the serious occasion on which he appears, even though he may feel himself provoked or irritated by the course of examination adopted. In reference to facts, a medical witness must bear in mind that he should not allow his testimony to be influenced by the consequences which may follow from his statement of them, or their probable effect upon any case which is under trial. In reference to opinions, their possible influence on the fate of a prisoner should inspire caution in forming them, but when once formed they should be honestly and candidly stated, without reference to consequences. The questions put on either side should receive direct answers, and the manner of the witness should not be perceptibly different whether he is replying to a question put by the counsel for the prosecution or for the defence. Care should be taken not to argue with counsel. What a witness says under such circumstances is not evidence, except in answers to questions, and he is there only for the purpose of stating what is relevant to the case. The replies should be concise, distinct, and audible, and, except where explanation may be necessary, they should be confined strictly to the terms of the question. Answers to questions should be neither ambiguous, undecided, nor evasive. If by a proper consideration of all the medical facts the witness has come to a conclusion on the subject, his answer should be expressed in plain and decided language, either in the affirmative or negative. A man who has formed no conclusion is not in a position to give evidence. No opinion should be given for which the witness is not prepared to assign reasons. The replies should be made in simple language free from technicality. The employment of such technical phraseology before persons wholly ignorant of, or but imperfectly acquainted with medical terms is not science, but pedantry. A medical witness should for his own credit, and for that of the profession to which he belongs, employ plain and simple language in giving his evidence generally. A medical witness may, without any imputation upon his bona fides, explain medical points to counsel and correct him on medical subjects, when wrong in his views or statements, but he should avoid even the appearance of prompting counsel in the conduct of the case. A medical man has no privilege to avoid giving in evidence any statement made to him by a patient, but he is bound to disclose, when called upon to do so, every communication, however private and confidential, which has been made to him while attending in his professional character. A dying declaration is not admissible in evidence, unless the deceased was conscious of approaching death, and made it under a sense of impending death. Any hope of recovery, however slight, renders such a declaration inadmissible, and the question turns rather on the state of mind at the time of making the declaration than upon the interval between it and the death. The declaration is only admissible in a charge of homicide, and where the death of the deceased is the subject of the charge, and the circumstances of the death the subject of the declaration. Where a medical man is called to attend a patient suffering from some injury or disorder suspects that such injury or disorder has been caused by some third person, and by holding out a promise or threat succeeds in obtaining from such person a confession of guilt, such confession will not be received in evidence in a criminal prosecution. A medical man may be called upon to assist a jury of matrons impanelled to try whether a prisoner is quick with child.

Experts.—Nothing more is required to entitle any one to give evidence as a skilled medical witness than that he has been educated in his profession, nor is it necessary that he should be engaged in the practice of his profession. The tribunal must determine the weight due to such testimony in each particular instance, and it is a question of fact to be decided by the Court at the trial, whether a witness offered as an expert has the necessary qualifications. It should be distinctly remembered that medical men, when called as skilled witnesses, may only say what in their judgment would be the result of certain facts submitted to their consideration, and may not give an opinion as to the general merits of the case, or on things with which a jury may be supposed to be equally well acquainted. It will frequently be the duty of a medical expert, in civil as well as in criminal cases, and in all actions for malapraxis, to pass an opinion on the practice of another professional man. On such occasions, while there should be no suppression of truth, a witness is bound, in answering questions put to him by counsel, to state his opinion, and the grounds upon which it is based, clearly and distinctly. A medical witness is not bound to be forward in pointing out and suggesting defects, or in endeavouring to lower another practitioner in the opinion of the public; but nothing should be concealed which is relevant to the question of the case in issue.

GIFTS FROM PATIENTS.

No person who stands in a relation of special confidence to another, so as to acquire habitual influence over his mind, can accept any gift or benefit from the person who is under the dominion of that influence without danger of having the gift set aside in a Court of Equity; and where there exists a relation which naturally creates influence over the mind, such as the relation between medical adviser and patient, the Court will infer, from the mere fact of the existence of such relationship between the parties, the probability of such undue influence having been exerted. In such cases, therefore, the burthen of proving that the transaction is righteous falls upon the person taking the benefit, and in order to prove this, he must show not only that the donor knew what he was doing, but also how the intention was produced. In questions of this kind, medical attendants are within that class of persons whose acts, when dealing with their patients, are watched with great jealousy. The Court does not blame or discountenance the influence itself flowing from such a relationship, but, on the contrary, considers the due exercise of it useful and advantageous to society; it holds, however, as an inseparable condition, that such influence should be exerted for the benefit of the patient, and not for the advantage of the medical attendant. The Court of Probate, however, holds that these rules are not applicable to the making of wills, and that the natural influence which arises out of the relationship of doctor and patient may lawfully be exerted to obtain a will or legacy, so long as the testator thoroughly understands what he is doing, and is a free agent.

CONTRACTS WITH PATIENTS.

There is nothing in the relation of medical attendant and patient which can prevent the one from entering into a contract with the other, but while such a relation continues, a Court of Equity will look upon a contract entered into without the intervention of a third party with considerable jealousy. A man who happens to be an eminent physician, and is therefore called upon to attend a number of persons, is not consequently precluded from entering into a contract with any such person, such as the purchase of a house, for instance, from any of his numerous patients; for in such a case, the contract proceeds openly and fairly, and the relation of physician and patient has, in reality, no bearing upon it; but the case is far different when the relation is continued down to the time of the contract, and where the contract, in point of fact, arises out of such relation.

ACTION FOR DEFAMATION.

Any matter affecting a medical man in his profession, although not in itself actionable, becomes so if it tend to disgrace or affect him injuriously in such profession, but unless the fact be admitted in the defamatory matter, he must prove that he was in practice, and legally qualified to act in such capacity at the time when the cause of action arose, or the words could not have affected him in his profession. In every such publication the law will infer malice. Where special damage is claimed, such damages must have actually occurred, must be the natural and direct consequence of the wrongful act, and not too remote. If, however, the plaintiff fail in proving special damage, as, for instance, the loss of particular patients, he may recover damages for a general loss of business, if the matter be actionable in itself, whether such loss has or has not actually arisen at the time. Partners may sue jointly, and recover damages for injury sustained in their joint business. An action for libel (written defamation) must be brought within six years after the cause of action. An action for slander (oral defamation) must be brought within two years after the words spoken, unless such words are actionable only by reason of special damage, in which case the action may be brought at any time within six years.

PARTNERS, ASSISTANTS, &c.

Partners.—In no case can a partnership exist where there is the relationship of master and servant between the parties, whatever may be the manner in which the latter is remunerated. Neither does a partnership exist where there is no joint interest. An agreement to procure a partnership for a medical man, by the assignment of patients by a third person, to whom a premium is to be paid, is not illegal. Where an individual partner acquires an office or other appointment of a personal nature, it does not become partnership property, except by special agreement, although it may have been acquired by means of partnership property and, during the partnership, the partner holding it may be accountable to the partnership for the profits. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the presumption is that the partners are entitled to an equal share of the profits, and where the agreement is only to share the profits, under similar circumstances, the losses must be shared in the same proportion. A partner is not accountable for a free gift made to him exclusively, although the reason of the gift may be some partnership transaction, except by special agreement. Each partner may pay debts out of the partnership funds, receive debts, purchase drugs, &c., on the usual credit, and hire servants upon reasonable terms, and dismiss them, unless restrained from so doing by the partnership articles. A partner may not transfer his interest to another, so as to constitute him a member of the partnership, without the consent of the other. Where a patient has stipulated for the personal attendance of one particular member of the firm, the firm can enforce no claim, if the arrangement has not been strictly adhered to. The partnership may be dissolved by mutual agreement, or by the occurrence of any event made a ground for dissolution by the articles. A dissolution of the partnership may be obtained in equity, where one partner is systematically excluded from the business; or on the ground of permanent and wilful neglect of business, or gross misconduct as to partnership matters by one partner; or on account of the insanity of a partner, or if he become permanently incapacitated from attending to the business. In the case of a partnership between accoucheurs, it was held that the immoral conduct of one partner was alone a ground for dissolution, as the particular business of the firm would be materially affected thereby. A partnership is also dissolved, by operation of law, on the death or bankruptcy of a partner, or on his conviction for felony. Where a premium has been paid by one partner, the Court will, under certain circumstances, order an apportionment, and a return of part of such premium, on a dissolution. On a dissolution, the partners may separately carry on the business at any place, unless restrained by agreement.

Assistants.—A medical man keeping an open surgery for the sale or compounding of poisons, must not engage an unqualified assistant who is not registered under the Pharmacy Acts. No person may, under a penalty of 5*l.*, act as assistant to an apothecary in compounding and dispensing medicines without first passing an examination and obtaining a certificate from the Apothecaries' Company. In every written contract with an assistant, the remuneration should be expressed, and where the master is to be paid for the board and lodging, this also should be expressed, or there must at any rate be such an agreement or understanding to that effect as will satisfy a jury. In engagements of service in the medical profession, the customs of the profession, as, for instance, to determine the contract by notice, are considered as incorporated with the contract, unless excluded expressly or by implication. Where an assistant is to be remunerated by a portion of the profits, and not by a fixed salary, he is not necessarily on that account constituted a partner, as between the parties themselves. As regards third persons, he is considered a partner if he be paid by a share of the net profits, but not if he be paid by a share of the gross earnings, or by a sum of money calculated with reference to profits. Where no time is expressed, the engagement is considered a yearly hiring, and cannot be terminated before the end of the year, except by consent. A master is liable on contracts entered into by an apprentice or assistant, when he has authorized such contracts either expressly or by implication: as, for instance, where the assistant usually orders drugs and the master pays. This liability remains even after the assistant has been discharged, unless the person giving credit be made aware of the fact. Even if the contract be made in the assistant's name, the master will be liable. A master is not criminally responsible for the acts of an assistant, unless he expressly command or personally co-operate in them. Thus, if a patient's death be caused by the negligence of an assistant, or by the negligence of an assistant added to the negligence of a master, the master cannot be convicted of manslaughter. A master is, however, as a rule, civilly liable for the wrongful acts of an assistant, unless they be beyond the ordinary scope of the employment. Thus, a medical man is liable to a civil suit for injury done to a patient by the want of proper skill in his assistant, but the patient will have to prove that the injury was directly caused by such want of skill. The practice of an apprentice or unqualified assistant to an apothecary must be confined to his master's house. No action will lie against a master to recover a gratuity promised at the expiration of a period of service. An apprentice or assistant is liable to imprisonment for a breach of duty to his master involving also a public duty, as for causing the death of a patient by gross negligence. An assistant rightfully discharged has no claim for wages for the broken period of service. A master is justified in discharging an assistant for wilful disobedience of any lawful order; for gross moral misconduct, whether pecuniary or otherwise; for habitual negligence in business, or conduct calculated to seriously injure his master's business; or for long absence or permanent disability from illness. If a good ground of discharge exist, and be known to the master, it is sufficient to justify the discharge, although he may not insist on that as the precise ground of discharge, or even although he may allege a different ground. A master is not bound to give any character or testimonial to an assistant or apprentice on leaving; but any statement which he may make to a person making inquiries as to the character or abilities of a former apprentice or assistant will be considered privileged. An apprentice, or a pupil with whom a premium has been paid, cannot be discharged for misconduct. The remedy lies in an action on the covenants in the indenture.

Bonds not to set up.—In agreements made between medical men and their apprentices or assistants, the apprentice or assistant usually stipulates that he will not, after the expiration of his time of service, exercise his profession within a certain distance of the place where his master is established at the time. Such a contract is not an injurious restraint of trade, for the public derives an advantage in the unrestrained choice which such a stipulation gives to the employer of able assistants; and the security it affords that he will not withhold from his assistant instruction in the secrets of his profession, and the communication of his own skill and experience, from the fear of his afterwards having a rival in the same profession. The bond is valid when given by an assistant after he has entered the service of the medical man, provided that the employment be still continued. Every such stipulation is valid, where the restraint is confined to anything like reasonable limits, but it must not extend to prohibit the person bound thereby from exercising his profession at all, although the time of such restriction be limited. Otherwise, the restraint need not be limited to the life of the person in whose favour the stipulation is made, or to the time during which such person may carry on his business or profession. If the medical man be resident in London, it is usual for the assistant to stipulate that he will not practise in London, and within a mile, or a mile and a half of the same; if the medical man reside in the suburbs, the restriction is usually confined to the place of residence and three miles round the same: if he reside in a country town, the restriction is usually confined to such town and two miles from the same. Where no precise language is used, but the covenant is generally not to practise within so many miles of a certain place, the distance will be measured "as the crow flies," and not by roads and streets.

The principal regulations affecting these appointments are printed at length in another part of the work, and follow the List of "Medical Officers of the Army and Navy."

Surgeon in Passenger Ship.—Every person who is to be carried as medical practitioner in a passenger ship, must be registered as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary, except in the case of a foreign ship, when it is sufficient if he be authorized by law to practise as such in the country to which the ship belongs. His appointment is subject to the approval of the Board of Trade, and he must be provided with surgical instruments, to the satisfaction of such Board. Any person not possessing the necessary qualifications trying to proceed to sea as ship's surgeon, is liable to a penalty not exceeding 100*l.*, and not less than 10*l.*

Surgeon in Merchant Ship.—Every person to be carried as medical practitioner in a merchant ship, must be registered as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary. He is, probably, entitled to sue for wages in the Admiralty Court as a "mariner," and consequently to claim the advantage of maritime lien.

Medical Inspector of Merchant Ships.—Any local marine board may, upon being required by the Board of Trade so to do, appoint and remove a medical inspector of ships for the port, who must be registered. At ports where there are no local marine boards, the Board of Trade may appoint and remove such inspectors. The remuneration of an inspector appointed by a local marine board is fixed by such board, but is subject to the control of the Board of Trade. Where the inspector is appointed by the Board of Trade, that Board also fixes his remuneration.

Medical Inspector of Seamen.—A medical inspector of seamen may be appointed in the same manner as a medical inspector of merchant ships. His remuneration is fixed by the Board of Trade, and paid out of the Mercantile Marine Fund.

Medical Inspector of Passenger Ships.—Is appointed by the Emigration Officer at the port of clearance. He must be duly registered.

Prison Surgeon.—A duly registered surgeon is appointed to every gaol, house of correction, bridewell, or penitentiary, by the justices in sessions assembled, during whose pleasure he holds his office. The amount of his salary is fixed by the justices in sessions assembled, but in the case of a municipal borough, the approval of the council must be obtained. He may obtain a superannuation allowance after holding office for twenty years, provided he be not less than sixty years of age, or if he become incapable from sickness, or from injury received in the execution of his duty. In either case, the visiting justices must report as to his good conduct. The superannuation allowance may be either an annuity not exceeding two-thirds of his salary and emoluments, or a gratuity not exceeding the amount of his salary and emoluments for one year. He is not a subordinate officer, but he is bound to obey the directions of the gaoler in matters not regulated by Acts of Parliament. In addition to the ordinary duties of visiting, examining, and attending the prisoners, he is required to keep a journal, and to enter therein daily all circumstances that have come under his professional notice during the day; and also to be present at executions, and to deliver a certificate of death to the sheriff. One of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State appoints the surgeons and assistant surgeons to the convict prisons abroad.

Factory Surgeon.—Certifying surgeons under the Factory Acts are appointed by the inspectors of factories, who may also annul any such appointment. The Secretary of State may also revoke any such appointment, or any order annulling such appointment. Every certifying surgeon must be registered and in actual practice, and must not have a beneficial interest in any factory. His duties are to examine and to certify as to the apparent age and state of health of children and young persons to be employed in factories, and also to investigate and report on accidents taking place in such factories. The fees may be regulated by a special agreement in writing between the occupier of the factory and the surgeon, or they will, on the requisition of the occupier of the factory, be fixed by an inspector. Where the fees are fixed by an inspector, they must not, in any case where the surgeon examines more than one person, exceed 1*s.* for each person presented to him at the factory, by the occupier or his agent, to be examined, together with 6*d.* for every half mile that the distance of the factory from the residence of the surgeon exceeds one mile. Such fees, including mileage, may not be less than 1*s.*, and may in no case exceed 5*s.* for any one visit, except when upon such visit the surgeon examines more than ten persons so presented to him, in which case he may claim 6*d.* for each person examined instead of all other fees. Where a factory is situated within the distance of one mile from the residence of the certifying surgeon, the fee for such factory must not exceed 2*s.* 6*d.* for each visit, except when, upon such visit, he examines more than five such persons so presented to him, in which case he may claim 6*d.* for each person examined instead of all other fees. Not more than 6*d.* may be allowed to a certifying surgeon for any certificate which he may be allowed by an inspector to sign or issue otherwise than at the factory where the person is to be employed. The occupier of the factory must pay such fees to the certifying surgeon at the time of signing such certificates, unless some other time has been appointed by the inspector. For every investigation into the causes and extent of an accident at a factory, the certifying surgeon is entitled to a fee not exceeding 10*s.*, or such part thereof, not being less than 3*s.*, as the inspector of the district may consider a reasonable remuneration to him for his trouble. The following is the scale of fees for investigating and reporting on accidents sanctioned by the Secretary of State for the Home Department. For the examinations and report on any accident which may not require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than one mile, 3*s.* For the examinations and report on any accident which may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than one mile, and not more than two miles, 4*s.* For the examinations and report on any accident which may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than two miles, and not more than three miles, 5*s.* Where any examination or report may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than three miles, a further sum of 6*d.* for each half mile that such distance may exceed three miles. In any intricate case, or when any peculiar circumstances arise, either in making the inquiry, or framing the report, the inspectors may recommend a higher fee than those above stated, so that no fee exceeding 10*s.* be assigned for any one accident, and provided the reason for assigning such higher fee be stated by the inspector. The distances mentioned above apply to the number of miles which the surgeon is compelled to travel to make the examinations, taking the shortest way in his power, and refer only to the ground which he has to pass over in proceeding to the works, together with any additional distance which he may have to travel to examine the person injured. The distance which he has travelled in returning either from the investigation at the works or from the examination of the person injured, is not to be added to the mileage, nor must the distance travelled to the place where the injured person is examined be added unless he has had to travel a greater distance than he would have done in returning from the investigation at the works direct to his residence.

Medical Officer of the Privy Council.—This officer is now attached to, and under the control of the Local Government Board. He is appointed by the Privy Council, who may remove him at their pleasure. His duty is to report to the Local Government Board as to matters affecting the public health. His salary is fixed by the Commissioners of the Treasury, but must not exceed 1500*l.* per annum. He is paid out of moneys provided by Parliament.

Medical Officers under the Contagious Diseases Acts.—The Admiralty, or Secretary of State for War, may appoint, under these Acts, Visiting Surgeons and assistants (who must be registered) at places to which the Acts extend. Their duties are to examine women who are common prostitutes, either upon a justice's order, or upon the voluntary submission of the women, in writing, and to give certificates as to their state of health. The same authorities may appoint duly qualified medical men as inspectors of hospitals, and assistants, at places to which the Acts extend. Their duties are to report as to the suitability of buildings proposed to be used under the Acts as certified hospitals for the reception and detention of women affected with contagious diseases, and to visit and inspect such certified hospitals from time to time.

Medical Visitors of Lunatics.—Two of these officers are appointed from time to time by the Lord Chancellor. Every candidate must be a physician in actual practice, and must not have been within the two preceding years interested in any house licensed for the reception of lunatics. The salary is 1500*l.* per annum, but the officer is after his appointment debarred from practising his profession. Travelling and incidental expenses are allowed, and the Lord Chancellor may order a superannuation allowance to any Visitor who has served for twenty years and is above sixty years of age, or who is disabled by permanent infirmity.

Medical Officers in Parishes and Unions.—Medical officers in parishes and unions, comprising a district medical officer and a workhouse medical officer, are appointed by a majority of the guardians present at a meeting of the Board consisting of more than three, or by three, if no more be present. The guardians may also, in cases of emergency, appoint one or more medical officers to act temporarily. A medical officer paid by salary may not be appointed a guardian. This does not apply in the case of a medical officer who has been pensioned off. As a rule, the same person may be appointed medical officer for the workhouse and also for the district. These officers are appointed by virtue of orders issued by the Local Government Board, which also defines their duties, &c., by orders issued from time to time. Every medical officer must be registered as qualified to practise both medicine and surgery. The guardians may suspend a medical officer from the discharge of his duties, and the Local Government Board may, at their discretion, remove him from office. Subject to these provisions, a medical officer holds office until he dies, resigns, or is proved insane. Under very special circumstances, the guardians may appoint as district officer a medical man registered with one qualification only. Partners cannot be appointed joint medical officers of a district, but they may be appointed individually as medical officers of distinct districts in the same or in any other union. A medical officer may be transferred from one district to another by the guardians without vacating his appointment. The transfer can only be made with his consent. Every medical officer must name to the guardians a duly registered substitute to whom applications for medicines and attendance may be made in case of his absence from home. He may not expressly delegate to his assistant the duties of his office, but he may name an assistant or partner as his substitute. The guardians may object to the appointment of any person as substitute of whom they may not approve. As a general rule, the guardians may not assign to any medical officer a district which exceeds in extent the area of 15,000 statute acres, or which contains a population exceeding 15,000 persons. This does not apply to Wales, but no such district therein may be assigned to a medical officer residing more than seven miles from any part of any parish included within such district. In addition to the regular salary, the guardians may, with the consent of the Local Government Board, pay to medical officers reasonable compensation for extraordinary services. A medical officer is entitled to an extra fee of not less than 10*s.*, or more than 20*s.*, for attending a woman in or immediately after childbirth, and to a fee of 2*l.* where great difficulty has occurred in the delivery, or long subsequent attendance has been necessary. He is also entitled to charge extra for services performed on board ship in compliance with any regulation of the Local Government Board, and such charges are to be paid by the captain of the vessel. A Poor Law medical officer who, in the course of his duties, vaccinates any person resident in the house of a person ill with small-pox, who has never been vaccinated or had the small-pox, or who re-vaccinates any such person, who has never been re-vaccinated, is entitled to be paid the same fees in every such case as he would be entitled to receive if he were the public vaccinator for the district. He must, however, transmit the same certificates as he would be required to transmit if he were such public vaccinator. Remuneration for the operations mentioned below is not included in the salary of a district medical officer, but they are paid for after the following rates:—Treatment of compound fractures of the skull, or treatment of compound fractures or compound dislocation of the leg, or amputation of leg, arm, foot, or hand, or operation for strangulated hernia—5*l.* Treatment of simple fractures or simple dislocations of the thigh or leg, including fracture of the neck of the thigh-bone or of the malleolus externus; but not of the knee-cap, tarsus, metatarsus, or toes—3*l*. Treatment of dislocations or simple or compound fractures of the arm, including dislocation of the shoulder, elbow, or wrist, and fracture of the humerus, ulna, and radius; but not fracture of the ribs, clavicle, scapula, acromion, elbow, carpus, metacarpus, fingers, or thumbs—1*l*. These rates include all charges for apparatus, &c., and for future attendance. If the patient does not survive the operation thirty-six hours, only half the above fees are paid. No such fees become payable with respect to amputations, except in cases of sudden accident, immediately threatening life, unless the medical officer has, before the operation, obtained, at his own cost, the advice of a registered practitioner, qualified to practise medicine and surgery in England and Wales, and has procured from him a certificate stating that, in his opinion, it was right and proper that such amputation should be then performed. If several of such fees become payable with respect to the same person, at the same time, in consequence of the same injury, only one (the highest) fee is payable. The guardians may also allow extra remuneration for any other surgical case presenting special difficulty. A medical officer must have attained the age of sixty years, and have served as such for twenty years, before he is entitled to superannuation. He need not have devoted his whole time to the services of the union or parish by which the superannuation is granted, nor is his claim to such an allowance affected by the fact that he has acted as sanitary officer. The allowance must not exceed two-thirds of his salary. It is payable in trust only. Every medical officer must give to the guardians, when required, any reasonable information as to a pauper who is or has been under his care, and must give a certificate as to the health of any child under fourteen to be bound apprentice by them. The workhouse or other parish officers must pay him for attendance as private patients. He is liable to a heavy penalty if he induces any poor person to leave his parish with intent to cause such person to become chargeable to some other parish. He may not employ a midwife as his substitute. He must visit once a quarter every pauper lunatic in his district not in an asylum or licensed house, and must also, under a penalty of 10*l*., give notice to the relieving officer or one of the overseers, of any pauper lunatic in his district who ought to be sent to an asylum, within three days after obtaining knowledge thereof. A medical officer of a union who has been pensioned off is not disqualified from being elected a guardian. A medical officer whose appointment has not been made under seal is not entitled to recover his fees or salary, or damages, in case of an illegal dismissal. The guardians may employ their medical officers to prepare or collect information to enable them to effectually discharge their duties, and pay them specially for such services.

Public Vaccinator.—Public Vaccinators are appointed by the guardians in unions and parishes. The form of contract to be employed on such occasions is prescribed by the Local Government Board. Every Public Vaccinator must be duly registered with qualifications both in medicine and surgery, and must have obtained a certificate of instruction in vaccination from some public vaccinator authorized by the Privy Council to grant such certificates. Vaccinating stations for instruction and examination are established in London, Birmingham, Bristol, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sheffield, Exeter, Edinburgh, and Glasgow. It is the duty of a public vaccinator to vaccinate any child resident within his district brought to him for that purpose, and to examine the same the following week, and give a certificate, after a prescribed form, according to the success or non-success of the operation. He must not certify that a child is insusceptible of successful vaccination unless he has vaccinated it three times unsuccessfully. He must transmit a certificate of each case of successful vaccination to the vaccination officer for his district within seven days after he has ascertained that the operation has been successfully performed; and a certificate that a child is unfit for or insusceptible of successful vaccination within seven days after the examination of such child. A public vaccinator who finds, upon personal examination, that a child resident in his district, not vaccinated by him, has been successfully vaccinated, may, upon request, grant a certificate to such effect to the parent of the child. This will have the same force as a certificate of successful vaccination by himself. All necessary forms can be obtained from the Local Government Board. Re-vaccination must be limited by the following conditions—(1) That, so far as he can ascertain, the applicant has attained the age of 15 years, or, if during any immediate danger of small-pox, 12 years, and has not before been successfully vaccinated. (2) That, in his judgment, the proposed re-vaccination is not, for any sufficient medical reason, undesirable. (3) That he can afford lymph without postponing the claims for primary vaccination. The contract with the guardians may only provide for payment for successful vaccinations, and the rate for primary vaccinations must not be lower than the following scale, viz.—For every such vaccination done at an appointed station, situated at or within one mile from the residence of the vaccinator, or in the workhouse of the parish—1*s*. 6*d*. For every such vaccination done at any station over one mile and under two miles from his residence—2*s*. For every such vaccination done at any station over two miles from his residence—3*s*. Distance to be measured according to the nearest carriage-road. A public vaccinator may not charge any fee to the parent or other person for his certificate. The fees for successful re-vaccination are two-thirds of the fees above given. On reports made to the Local Government Board, awards not exceeding one shilling per case are granted to public vaccinators who have fulfilled certain conditions. The following is an epitome of the regulations under which such awards are made:—1. Awards will not be given to the vaccinators of districts where contracts approved by the central office are not in force, or where the arrangements in operation are contrary to those recommended by the central authority. 2. No award will be given to a public vaccinator who has not properly complied with all statutory and other requirements in connection with his contract, or who has not himself habitually performed the duties of his office, or if there is a deficiency in the average quantity of the infantile public vaccination, and the vaccinator has conduced to the deficiency by want of punctuality or by any other fault in relation to the public. 3. No award will be given unless the quality of the vaccinator's work comes up to a certain standard of merit; the scars produced being thoroughly well marked in their foveation. Where this is satisfactory, the work will be divided into two classes according to the area of foveated surface, viz.: First grade, scars having collectively at least half a square inch total area. Second grade, scars less than the above, but having collectively at least one-third of a square inch total area. The second grade is only allowable in cases of first awards, and no vaccinator who has once received an award for work of the second grade will be deemed eligible for an award unless his work reaches the first grade. 4. No award will be made to a vaccinator who has not held his office for at least a year, nor to any person who at the time of inspection is not actually in office as the public vaccinator. 5. The cases to be taken into account for the purposes of calculating the amount to be awarded are the successful infantile vaccinations recorded in the vaccinator's registers (and verified by the board of guardians) from the quarter-day preceding the last inspection to the quarter-day preceding the present inspection. A penalty not exceeding 20*s.* may be imposed on any person preventing a public vaccinator from taking lymph from a child.

Vaccination Officer.—It is the duty of the guardians of every union and parish to appoint and pay one or more vaccination officers, and to assign to them districts coinciding either with a vaccination district or districts, or with a district or districts of a registrar of births and deaths. These officers are subject to the jurisdiction of the Local Government Board, from which source they are supplied with appropriate books and forms. The appointment is to be made by vote of a majority of guardians, and to be reported within seven days to the Local Government Board. Assistants may be appointed temporarily, in case of an outbreak of small-pox. A vaccination officer holds office until he dies, resigns, or is removed by or with the consent of the Local Government Board; if he declines to acquiesce in a change of district, he can only be removed after six months' notice. On appointment, he must agree to give one month's notice of resignation, or forfeit a stipulated sum. He may not, except by permission of the Local Government Board, perform the duties of his office by deputy. He must obey all lawful orders of the guardians and of the Local Government Board. The salary or remuneration is to be directed or approved of by the Local Government Board, and is payable on the usual quarter-days, but the guardians may pay such proportion as they may think fit, on account, at the termination of each month. The vaccination officer must make out his account, and submit his books and certificates to the guardians each quarter, and the guardians may postpone payment of the salary or balance of the salary till he does so. He must also produce the books and certificates to the guardians whenever required. All fees received are to be accounted for to the guardians. Certificates of successful vaccination are to be transmitted to the vaccination officer within seven days after it has been ascertained that the operation has been successfully performed, and certificates that a child is unfit for or insusceptible of successful vaccination, within seven days after the examination of the child upon which such certificate was founded. No fee is payable for the registration of any certificate of vaccination. The registrar of births and deaths must transmit once at least in every month a list of births and deaths within his district to each vaccination officer whose district wholly or partially falls within his own. Every vaccination officer must keep a book and enter minutes of the notices of vaccination given to him as above, and register the certificates transmitted to him. His register must be open to searchers at reasonable times; and he must, on demand, give a copy under his hand, or under that of his deputy, of any entry therein, on payment of a fee of 6*d.* for the search, and 3*d.* for each copy. He must within one week after the first day of January and the first day of July in each year, make a list of all cases in which certificates of vaccination have not been duly received by him during the last preceding half year, and submit the same to the next meeting of the guardians of the union or parish wherein he acts. The Local Government Board is empowered to make rules, orders, and regulations with respect to proceedings to be taken by guardians, or their officers, for the enforcement of the provisions of the Vaccination Acts. The Board have ordered that the vaccination officer must take necessary proceedings under the Acts, when directed by the Board so to do; that he must act as registrar of vaccination for the district to which he is appointed, and see that all children resident therein are duly vaccinated; that he must keep a report book, to be provided by the Board; that he must make a house to house visitation on an outbreak of small-pox, if directed so to do; and, generally, that he must keep, and be responsible for, all books, registers, and forms supplied to him.

Analyst, under the Sale of Food and Drugs Act.—In London, the commissioners of sewers, in the rest of the metropolis, the vestries and district boards, and in other parts of England, the court of quarter sessions of every county, and the town council of every borough having a separate court of quarter sessions, or a separate police establishment, are empowered, and when required so to do by the Local Government Board, it is their duty to appoint one or more persons "possessing competent knowledge, skill, and experience," as analysts of all articles of food and drugs sold within their respective jurisdictions. The appointment and removal of such officers is subject to the approval of the Local Government Board. The town council of a borough may engage the analyst of another borough, or of the county, to act as analyst of such borough. Any purchaser of an article of food or of a drug is entitled to have the same analysed by the analyst for his district, on payment of a sum not exceeding 10*s.* 6*d.*, and to receive from him a certificate of the result. If no analyst has been appointed for the district, the purchaser may resort to any other analyst, and make the best bargain he can with him. The analyst must in like manner, and on similar terms, analyse any article of food, or drug submitted to him by a medical officer of health, inspector of nuisances, inspector of weights and measures, inspector of markets, or police constable acting by order of the local authority, and, with all convenient speed, certify the result. The form of certificate of analysis is prescribed by the Act (38 & 39 Vict. c. 63). Articles for analysis may be sent through the post. The analyst must report quarterly to the authority appointing him, the number of articles analysed by him during the foregoing quarter, specifying the result of each analysis, and the sum paid to him in respect thereof. On proceedings under the Act, the analyst's certificate is sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated, but the defendant may require that the analyst shall be called as a witness. The justices may, in their discretion, on the hearing of a complaint, send any article of food, or drug to be analysed by the chemical officers at Somerset House.

Medical Officer of Health.—In the metropolis, every vestry and district board must appoint one or more legally qualified medical practitioner or practitioners of skill and experience as officer or officers of health, and may remove such officer or officers at their pleasure. The principal duties of such officers are to inspect and report periodically on the sanitary condition of their districts, to ascertain the existence of diseases, more especially epidemics, increasing the rate of mortality, to point out the existence of dangerous nuisances, and to point out the best means of checking or preventing the spread of epidemics and contagious diseases, and the most efficient modes of ventilating churches, schools, &c. within such districts.

Under the Public Health Act, 1875, the whole of England, with the exception of the metropolis, is divided into sanitary districts, called respectively, urban and rural sanitary districts. Urban sanitary districts consist (with a few exceptions) of municipal boroughs, districts under Improvement Commissioners established under Local Acts, and districts under Local Boards formed under the Public Health or Local Government Act, the sanitary authority being respectively the town council, the commissioners under the Local Act, or the Local Board. Rural sanitary districts consist entirely of unions not being coincident in area with, nor wholly included in an urban sanitary district, excluding the portions of the union which are situate within an urban sanitary district: the sanitary authorities are the boards of guardians of the respective unions which constitute those districts, but in certain cases some of the guardians are precluded from acting. The guardians may delegate their powers to a committee. Every urban sanitary authority must appoint, from time to time, a medical officer of health, being a legally qualified medical practitioner; and every rural sanitary authority must appoint, from time to time, one or more such officers, similarly qualified. With the sanction of the Local Government Board, the same person may be appointed medical officer for two or more districts, by the joint or several appointment of the sanitary authorities of such districts, in which case the Local Government Board prescribe the mode of election, and apportion the election expenses. With the like sanction, a district medical officer of a union may be appointed medical officer of health. Medical officers of health are to report as to the condition of premises dangerous to health or unfit for human habitation, and to deliver copies of every such report to the clerk of the local authority in writing; and to inspect and report on the condition of any premises on the representation of four or more householders that disease exists therein. A penalty not exceeding 20*l.* may be imposed on any person obstructing the officer in the performance of these duties. They may, moreover, exercise any of the powers with which an inspector of nuisances is invested by the Public Health Act, 1875, that is to say, they may enter and inspect premises where they may believe a nuisance to exist, between the hours of 9 A.M. and 6 P.M., to ground proceedings, after a demand made personally or in writing; they may order the removal of accumulations of filth within twenty-four hours; may enter and inspect slaughter-houses and butchers' shops, and seize any meat unfit for food; may inspect or examine all kinds of food exposed for sale or in the course of preparation for sale; may enter premises to inspect and report as to animals kept so as to be injurious to health, as to overcrowded houses, or houses in a dangerously filthy condition, as to the ventilation of factories, workshops, &c., not under the operation of any special Act, and as to nuisances arising from noxious vapours and from offensive trades; to ascertain the course of drains and inspect works, and to remove or abate a nuisance, in case of non-compliance with, or infringement of the order of justices, to report whether the cleansing of any house or articles would tend to prevent or check infection, and to give directions as to manner in which the same shall be cleansed and purified, &c. &c.

The Local Government Board may, on representation being made to it that the appointment of a medical officer of health for two or more districts in the same county would be advantageous, by order, unite them for the purpose of appointing such officer, and make regulations as to the mode of appointment and removal, and as to the payment of salary and expenses. No other medical officer of health may be appointed for any constituent district, except as assistant to the officer appointed for the united districts. A district medical officer may be appointed such an assistant. No urban district containing a population of 25,000 and upwards may, however, be included in such union.

If the sanitary authorities so desire, part of the salaries of medical officers of health is paid out of moneys voted by Parliament. In such case, the Local Government Board acquire the same powers as they have in the case of a district medical officer of a union, with regard to the qualification, appointment, duties, salary, and tenure of office of such officers. The regulations of the Local Government Board direct that in every such case a medical officer of health shall be registered, and shall also (unless the rule be dispensed with in any particular instance by the Board) possess a double qualification which might be registered; that a statement shall be submitted to the Board showing the population and extent of the district or districts for which the sanitary authority proposes to appoint a medical officer or officers of health, and the salary proposed; that the appointment shall be made only after the Board has approved of the proposals submitted to them; that no appointment of medical officer of health shall be made unless notice has been given at one of the two ordinary meetings next preceding the meeting or meetings at which the appointment is to be made (such notice being entered on the minutes), or unless an advertisement of the day of election has appeared in some public local newspaper at least seven days prior to the day on which the appointment is to be made; that the appointment must, within seven days, be reported to the Board; that on a vacancy the same rules shall be observed unless, with the approval of the Board, fresh arrangements are substituted; that if a medical officer be incapacitated by sickness or accident, the sanitary authority may appoint and pay a temporary substitute, but that the step must be immediately reported to the Board; that every medical officer shall hold office for such period as the sanitary authority may, with the sanction of the Board, determine, or until he die, or resign, or be removed by the sanitary authorities, with the consent of the Board, or by the Board; that if any medical officer shall decline to acquiesce in any necessary change in regard to districts, duties, or salary, his appointment may, with the consent of the Board, be determined at six months' notice; that no person shall be appointed who does not agree to give one month's notice of resignation, or to forfeit a sum agreed on as liquidated damages.

The Local Government Board further directs that, in every such case, the duties of a medical officer of health shall be defined to be as follows:—1. He shall inform himself, as far as practicable, respecting all influences affecting or threatening to affect injuriously the public health within the district. 2. He shall inquire into and ascertain by such means as are at his disposal the causes, origin, and distribution of diseases within the district, and ascertain to what extent the same have depended on conditions capable of removal or mitigation. 3. He shall by inspection of the district, both systematically at certain periods, and at intervals, as occasion may require, keep himself informed of the conditions injurious to health existing therein. 4. He shall be prepared to advise the sanitary authority on all matters affecting the health of the district, and on all sanitary points involved in the action of the sanitary authority; and, in cases requiring it, he shall certify, for the guidance of the sanitary authorities or of the justices, as to any matter in respect of which the certificate of a medical officer of health or a medical practitioner is required as the basis, or in aid of sanitary action. 5. He shall advise the sanitary authority with reference to the framing and working of bye-laws and regulations. 6. On receiving information of the outbreak of a contagious, infectious, or epidemic disease he shall visit the spot, inquire into the causes and circumstances of the outbreak, advise as to measures for preventing the extension of the disease, and assist in executing the same. 7. He shall, on receiving information from the inspector of nuisances that his intervention is required owing to a nuisance injurious to health or over-crowding in a house, take the necessary steps authorized by the statutes in that behalf. 8. He shall, if directed by the sanitary authority, or if he deems it advisable, inspect any animal, carcase, meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, fruit, vegetables, corn, bread, or flour exposed for sale or intended for food, and if he finds the same diseased, unsound, or unfit for food, he shall give directions for the same to be seized, in order to be dealt with by a justice. He may, also, on making complaint on oath, obtain an order from a justice to search for unsound food. 9. He shall perform all duties imposed upon him by bye-laws or regulations of the sanitary authority. 10. He shall inquire into any offensive process of trade carried on within the district and report on the best means for preventing any nuisance or injury to health therefrom. 11. He shall attend at the office of the sanitary authority as directed. 12. He shall report in writing to the sanitary authority his proceedings, any measures necessary to be taken for the improvement or protection of the public health within the district, and with respect to the sickness and mortality within the district. 13. He shall keep a book or books, to be provided by the sanitary authority, and shall enter therein his visits, with notes of his observations and instructions, the date and nature of all applications made to him, and the date and result of any action taken thereon or on previous reports, and shall produce such books to the sanitary authorities when required. 14. He shall prepare an annual report to the end of December in each year, comprising tabular statements of the sickness and mortality within the district, classified according to diseases, ages, and localities; a summary of action taken during the year for preventing the spread of disease; an account of proceedings taken or advised under the sanitary acts, and of the supervision which has been exercised by him over places or houses, with the nature and results of any proceedings in reference thereto; and also a record of action taken by him, or on his advice, with reference to offensive trades, bakehouses, and workshops. 15. He shall give immediate information to the Local Government Board of the outbreak of any dangerous epidemic disease within his district, and shall send to the Board a quarterly return of sickness and death within his district, and also copies of all his reports. 16. In matters not specifically provided for, he shall obey the instructions of the Board, and the lawful orders and directions of the sanitary authority. 17. Where more than one medical officer is appointed in a district, the duties may be distributed among them, or each officer may have a portion of the district assigned to him. The Local Government Board further advises the local sanitary authorities to offer adequate remuneration, directs that the amount thereof shall be submitted to and approved of by the Board, provides that reasonable compensation may be paid for extraordinary services, and directs that the salary or remuneration shall be paid on the usual quarter-days, but permits the sanitary authorities to pay such proportion thereof as they may think fit, on account, at the termination of each month.

Further duties are imposed upon medical officers of health by "The Artizans and Labourers' Dwellings Improvement Act, 1875." Such duties are the same as those under the head next immediately following.

The Board have no power to limit the action of the sanitary authorities to any one of the three kinds of appointment of medical officers open to them. Their general policy is to advise that whenever the services of an officer possessing special and superior qualifications for the office are likely to be obtainable, a combined district should be formed and a joint appointment made, the main object being to ensure the appointment of an officer for a district large enough to occupy his whole time, at a salary sufficient to command the services of a competent person.

Medical Officer, under "The Artizans and Labourers' Dwellings Improvement Act, 1875," in the Metropolis.—In the Metropolis, the Metropolitan Board of Works may, at any time, with the assent of a Secretary of State, appoint one or more regularly qualified medical practitioner or practitioners, with such remuneration as they think fit, to carry the above-mentioned Act into effect in the Metropolis. Such officer is to be deemed a medical officer of health of a local authority. His duty is to make representation, whenever he sees cause so to do, to the local authority, that any houses or courts, within a certain area under their jurisdiction, are unfit for human habitation; or that a low condition of health prevails in any such area which may be attributed to the closeness, bad arrangement, or bad condition of the houses within such area, or to any sanitary defect, and that such evils and defects cannot be remedied otherwise than by an improvement scheme for the reconstruction or rearrangement of the houses within such area. In addition to this, if two or more justices of the peace, or twelve or more ratepayers within his jurisdiction, complain to him of the unhealthiness of any area within such jurisdiction, it will be his duty to forthwith inspect such area, and to make a representation stating the facts of the case, and whether, in his opinion, such area is unhealthy or not for the purposes of the Act. In the case of illness or unavoidable absence of the medical officer, the Board may, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, appoint a duly qualified medical man to perform his powers and duties for a period not exceeding six months.

RECOVERY OF FEES AND CHARGES FROM PRIVATE PATIENTS AND PUBLIC AUTHORITIES.

Every duly registered medical man is entitled to demand and recover in any court of law, with full costs of suit, reasonable charges for professional aid, advice, and visits, and the costs of any medicines, or other medical or surgical appliances rendered or supplied by him to his patients, and no person is entitled to recover any such charges, unless he can prove, upon the trial, that he is so registered. Like proof is required from a medical man who files a bill to obtain sums due to him professionally from a testator's estate, or who is suing on a promissory note given for professional services. A medical man may recover such charges if he be registered at the time of trial, although he may not have been registered when he gave his professional attendance. He must, however, have been examined, and become qualified at the time of the services in respect of which he seeks to recover. A firm, one member whereof is registered as a Surgeon and Apothecary, and the other as a Surgeon only, may recover on a joint claim for attendances and medicines supplied in both capacities, and it would seem that a firm may recover in like manner although one of the members thereof be unregistered. A registered practitioner may sue for services rendered by an unregistered assistant, and an unregistered assistant may sue a registered practitioner for his salary, but an unregistered practitioner cannot recover on a contract made with a registered practitioner to attend his patients, at a fixed salary, during his absence. A copy of the medical register is evidence that the persons named therein are registered, and the absence of a name from such register is evidence, until the contrary be proved, that such person is not registered. A master is not bound to provide medical assistance for a servant, and a medical man who attends a servant must, unless he has an express understanding to the contrary with the master, look to the servant for payment. An infant may contract and render himself liable for medicines and medical aid, and a wife may pledge her husband's credit for the same. The customs of the profession are considered as imported into all contracts between medical men and their patients. A medical man may recover charges according to a scale varying with the class of patients visited, if the same be fair and reasonable. An uncertificated bankrupt may recover for professional attendance and advice. The right of a medical man to recover does not depend upon his effecting a cure. The general rule is that if there has been no beneficial service at all there shall be no pay; but if some benefit has been derived, though not to the extent expected, this shall go to the amount of the demand, leaving the patient to his action for negligence. A physician is now, in the absence of a distinct understanding to the contrary, entitled to be paid for his services, unless restrained by a bye-law of the college to which he may belong. A person registered with a surgical qualification only is not entitled to recover for attendance in cases not belonging to his branch of medicine, as, for instance, in a case of typhus fever. He may, however, dispense and administer medicines as subordinate and subservient to a surgical case which he is attending. The test is that where, in any particular instance, the medical man judges of the malady by the symptoms of the patient in regard to the internal functions of the body, and applies himself to cure it, not by manual operation externally, but by the administration of medicine internally, the case cannot be classed as a surgical one. There is no rule of law which prevents an apothecary from making distinct charges for attendances and for medicines. A registered apothecary is not precluded from recovering for medicines and attendances furnished in London, although possessing an extra-urban licence only. In all cases where a servant falls ill or meets with an accident, and is unable to pay for necessary medical assistance, the parish is bound to supply such assistance although the servant may not have previously stood in need of parish relief. If a deputy overseer, or even a mere stranger, direct a surgeon to attend a poor man, such person is liable for the surgeon's bill. A medical man called on by the police to visit a sick person in a station-house within the metropolitan district may claim the sum of 3*s.* 6*d.* for every such visit paid in the daytime, and the sum of 7*s.* 6*d.* for every such visit paid between the hours of 11 P.M. and 6 A.M. A certificate of attendance should be obtained, at the time, from the inspector on duty. The same fees have been recovered for similar services in various places in England, as being fair and reasonable. A medical man (not being a parish officer) who attends any sick on board ship, under regulations made by the Local Government Board for such purpose, is entitled to charge at the same rate as he is in the habit of doing in the case of private patients of the same rank, with extra charge for distance. Such charges are payable by the captain, on behalf of the owner. A medical man who reports to an Insurance Company as to the state of health of a patient, can only recover from the Company a fee for such service upon an express undertaking to pay such fee, although the report be made upon a form supplied by the office. A guard, or the superintendent of the station of a railway, has no authority to bind the Company by a contract entered into with a medical man to attend a passenger injured by an accident on the railway. The general manager of a railway may, however, bind the Company by such a contract to attend a servant of the railway injured in an accident in the performance of his duties; and an inspector of accidents has authority to send for medical assistance, and may pledge the credit of the company for the same. In all such cases, the authority will depend upon the circumstances. On a parol contract with a public board to perform certain professional services for such recompense as the board may allow as right and proper, an action will lie to recover a reasonable recompense, although the board tender what they consider right and proper. If there be a formal written contract, however, no such action will lie. The following are the fees and charges which may be claimed by medical men when called upon to give evidence in Courts of Law. Except in criminal cases, these fees, &c., are payable although the witness be not called upon to give professional evidence:—In the Superior Courts, and in Equity, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident in the town in which the cause is tried; 2*l.* 2*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident at a distance from the place of trial, inclusive of all except travelling expenses. If this witness attend in more than one cause, he is entitled to a proportionate part in each cause only. For travelling expenses, the amount reasonably and actually paid is allowed, provided it does not exceed 1*s.* per mile one way. In the Probate Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident within five miles of the General Post Office; 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident beyond that distance (including board and lodging). The same allowance for travelling expenses as in the Superior Courts. In the Divorce Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident within five miles of the General Post Office. From 2*l.* 2*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident beyond that distance (including board and lodging). The same allowance as in the Probate Court for travelling expenses. In the House of Lords, Physicians and Surgeons 2*l.* 2*s.* a day, and 1*l.* 1*s.* a day for hotel expenses if from home. Apothecaries 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, and the same allowance for hotel expenses. Higher charges are allowed under special circumstances. Sundays do not count as time. The sum necessarily expended is allowed for travelling expenses. In the County Court, from 10*s.* to 1*l.* a day. For travelling expenses, the sum reasonably paid, not more than 6*d.* a mile one way. In the Admiralty Court, from 1*l.* 1*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, including board and lodging. The same allowance as in the Superior Courts for travelling expenses. In the Bankruptcy Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident in the town in which the Court is held. From 1*l.* 1*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident at a distance from the Court (including subsistence). Travelling expenses 7*d.* a mile one way, where no railway is available, or expenses actually incurred. In the Lord Mayor's Court, 10*s.* 6*d.* to 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, and the same allowance for travelling expenses as in the Superior Courts. The expenses of witnesses in most cases of misdemeanor and in all cases of felony are now allowed. On an examination before a magistrate, a sum not exceeding 10*s.* 6*d.* may be allowed to a medical witness residing in the city, borough, or parish where the examination takes place or within two miles thereof, and to such a witness residing beyond that distance a sum not to exceed 1*l.* 1*s.* For mileage, a sum not exceeding 3*d.* a mile each way. Medical witnesses attending Courts of Assize, General Sessions of the Peace, &c., to give professional evidence, but not otherwise, may be allowed 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, with 2*s.* for every night they are detained from home, and for mileage, a sum not exceeding 3*d.* a mile each way. Every legally qualified practitioner who has attended at a Coroner's Inquest, in obedience to a Coroner's order, is entitled to a fee of 1*l.* 1*s.* for attending to give evidence, where no post-mortem examination has been made, and to a fee of 2*l.* 2*s.* for making a post-mortem examination and attending to give evidence. No fee can, however, be claimed for the performance of a post-mortem examination instituted without the previous direction of the Coroner. These fees are to be advanced and paid by the Coroner immediately after the termination of the Inquest.

Digitized by Google

THE SALE OF POISONS.

A medical practitioner, not being a legally qualified apothecary, is prohibited from selling or keeping an open surgery for retailing, dispensing, or compounding poisons, under a penalty of 5*l.*, unless he was either registered before August 11th, 1869, or has been registered since that date, after passing an examination in pharmacy in order to obtain his diploma for such registration. A legally qualified medical practitioner may dispense to his patients medicines containing poison, but such medicine should be labelled with his name and address, and the ingredients thereof, and the name of the person to whom it is sent should be entered in a book to be kept by him for the purpose. A medical man who keeps an open surgery, must conform to the same regulations as to the sale and compounding of poisons as are imposed upon chemists and druggists, under a penalty of 5*l.* for the first, and 10*l.* for each subsequent offence. The articles which are to be deemed poisons are divided into two classes:—Part I. comprises arsenic and its preparations, prussic acid, cyanide of potassium, and all metallic cyanides, strychnine and all poisonous vegetable alkaloids and their salts, aconite and its preparations, emetic tartar, corrosive sublimate, cantharides, savin and its oil, ergot of rye and its preparations, preparations of prussic acid, preparations of cyanide of potassium, and of all metallic cyanides, preparations of strychnine, and preparations of atropine. Part II. comprises oxalic acid, chloroform, belladonna and its preparations, essential oil of almonds (unless deprived of its prussic acid), opium, and all preparations of opium or of poppies, preparations of corrosive sublimate, preparations of morphine, red oxide of mercury, ammoniated mercury, and the tincture and all vesicating liquid preparations of cantharides. On the sale of any poison contained in Part I. or Part II., the box, vessel, or cover in which it is contained must be labelled with the name of the article, the word "poison," and the name and address of the seller. No poison contained in Part I. may be sold to any person unknown to the seller, unless introduced by some person known to the seller, and upon every such sale the seller must, before delivery, enter in a book to be kept for the purpose, the date, the name and address of the purchaser, the name and quantity of poison sold, and the purpose for which it is required, and must also cause the purchaser, and the person introducing the purchaser, to sign their names therein. Further restrictions are imposed on the sale of arsenic, except where the same forms part of a medicine compounded according to the prescription of a member of the medical profession, and a penalty of 20*l.* may be inflicted upon any one not conforming to the necessary regulations. If the purchaser be not known to the seller, a witness to the sale, who must be known to both, is required, and the sale must be made in his presence. The seller must, before delivery, enter into a book, to be kept for the purpose, the date of sale, the name and surname of purchaser, his place of abode and condition and occupation, the quantity of arsenic sold, and the purpose for which it is required, and must also sign his own name after such statement, and cause the purchaser to sign his name and address. No arsenic may be sold to a person under age; nor may any arsenic be sold unless, before the sale, it be mixed with soot or indigo, in the proportion of one ounce of soot or half an ounce of indigo, at the least, to each pound of arsenic. But if the purchaser state that the arsenic is required not for use in agriculture, but for some other purpose for which such admixture would, according to his representation, render it unfit, such arsenic may be sold without such admixture, in a quantity of not less than ten pounds at any one time. The registration of chemists in Ireland is regulated by "The Pharmacy Act (Ireland), 1875" (38 & 39 Vict. c. 57).

CERTIFICATES IN LUNACY.

As a general rule, two certificates are required with every insane person who is to be placed in an asylum or licensed house, each of which must be signed by a registered physician, surgeon, or apothecary, in actual practice. Each certificate must state that the patient is a proper person to be taken charge of and detained, and the person signing the same must specify the facts upon which he has formed his opinion that the patient is a lunatic, idiot, or person of unsound mind, and must distinguish facts observed by himself from facts communicated to him by others. It must not be founded only upon facts communicated by others, nor must there be any want of certainty in stating the facts required to be specified. The two medical men who sign the certificates must not be partners, nor must one be an assistant to the other, nor may either of them be a commissioner or visitor; nor, if the patient is to be received into a licensed house, or a hospital, may either certificate be signed by any one who, or whose father, brother, son, partner, or assistant is wholly or partly the proprietor of, or a regular professional attendant in such house or hospital, or has signed the order for the reception of the patient; nor may any person receiving any percentage on, or otherwise interested in, the payments to be made by or on account of the patient, or keeping a licensed house, or attending, in his medical capacity, a licensed house, asylum, hospital, or place where any lunatic may be confined, sign a certificate for the reception of a private patient into any licensed or other house; nor may any one who, or whose father, brother, son, partner, or assistant shall sign the order for the reception of a patient into an asylum sign the certificate for the reception of the same patient. Medical men signing certificates contrary to any of these provisions are liable to heavy penalties. Each medical man must, separately from the other, have personally examined the person to whom the certificate signed by him relates, not more than seven clear days previously to the reception of such person into the house or hospital. If he be not satisfied with his own personal examination, he is bound to make further inquiries before signing the certificate. The certificate need not be dated on the day of examination. Any person falsely stating or certifying anything in such certificate, and any person not being a physician, surgeon, or apothecary, signing as such, is guilty of a misdemeanor. A medical man, moreover, signing any such certificate which is untrue, without taking due care and making due inquiries, is liable to an action by the person injured by the consequences which may ensue. He is only liable, however, where he has wilfully signed a false certificate, or where he has been guilty of gross negligence in conducting the examination. If the certificate be signed maliciously, and without reasonable or probable cause, it may also be treated as a libel.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD.

This Board, which was established towards the latter end of 1871, consists of a president appointed by the Crown, the President of the Privy Council, all the principal Secretaries of State, the Lord Privy Seal, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Poor Law Board has now ceased to exist, and all the powers and duties vested in or imposed on the Poor Law Board have been transferred to the new Board. To this Board also have been transferred all the powers and duties of the Secretary of State with reference to the Acts affecting public health, drainage, sanitary matters, the registration of births, deaths, and marriages, &c., sundry powers and duties of the Board of Trade, the powers of the General Board of Health, and also all the powers and duties of the Privy Council with reference to the Acts affecting the Prevention of Disease, and Vaccination. The Board may issue directions and regulations, as they shall think proper, for the speedy interment of the dead; for house to house visitations; for the dispensing of medicines; for guarding against the spread of disease; and for affording to persons afflicted by or threatened with epidemic, endemic, or contagious diseases, such medical aid and such accommodation as may be required. The inspectors of the Board may attend meetings of the sanitary authorities when directed by the Board. They have, for the purposes of any inquiry directed by the Board, in relation to witnesses and their examination, the production of papers and accounts and the inspection of places and matters for the purposes of the Sanitary Acts, similar powers to those which poor-law inspectors have under, and for the purposes of, the Acts relating to the Poor Law. Rules and orders of the Board are proved in the same manner as rules and orders of the Poor Law Board were previously proved.

IRISH LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD.

This Board, established under an Act passed in 1872, consists of a president, being the Lord-Lieutenant for the time being, a vice-president, the under-secretary to the Lord-Lieutenant for the time being, and two other commissioners, one being qualified in like manner as the medical commissioner under the Medical Charities Act. In this Board is concentrated the supervision of the laws relating to the public health, local government, and the relief of the poor in Ireland.

LEGISLATION OF THE PAST YEAR.

The medical profession are affected very slightly, either directly or indirectly, by the meagre crop of statutes which has been the outcome of the past Session. The Prison Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 21) transfers English prisons, and the appointment of officers therein, to the Secretary of State, who will be aided by prison commissioners. These commissioners are to be assisted in the performance of their duties by inspectors, to be appointed by the Secretary of State, who, or some of whom will, we may safely assume, be medical men. The present prison officers are to hold their offices by the same tenure, and upon the same terms and conditions, as heretofore, and to receive salaries of not less amount than they have hitherto received. They are henceforth to perform such duties as they may be required to perform by the Secretary of State, so that such duties are the same as, or analogous to, those which they have hitherto performed. Any officer who has been in prison service for not less than twenty years, and is not less than sixty years of age, or who becomes incapable from confirmed sickness, age, or infirmity, or injury received in the actual execution of his duty, of executing his office in person, may, on the recommendation of the prison commissioners, be granted by the Treasury an annuity not exceeding two-thirds of his salary and emoluments, or a gratuity not exceeding the amount of his salary and emoluments for one year. The Act will come into force on 1st of April, 1878. The appointment and duties of medical officers of prisons in Scotland and Ireland will henceforth be regulated by the Acts 40 & 41 Vict. c. 53, and 40 & 41 Vict. c. 49, respectively. In each case, the duties to be performed will be—to visit the prison at least twice in every week, and oftener, if necessary, and to see every prisoner in the course of the week; to visit daily the prisoners, if any, confined in punishment cells, and to visit daily, and oftener, if necessary, such of the prisoners as are sick, and, when necessary, to direct any prisoner to be removed to the sick cells; to enter daily in a register or journal, to be kept in the prison, an account of the state of every sick prisoner, the name of his disease, and a description of the medicines, diet, and other treatment ordered by him for such prisoner; to inspect at least once in every three months every part of the prison, and to enter in the register or journal the result of each inspection, recording any observations on any want of cleanliness, drainage, warmth, or ventilation, any bad quality of the provisions, any insufficiency of clothing or bedding, and deficiency in the quantity or defect in the quality of the water, or any other cause which may affect the health of the prisoners; whenever he has reason to believe that the mind of a prisoner is, or is likely to be, injuriously affected by the discipline or treatment, to report the case in writing to the governor, together with such directions as he may think proper; and to call the attention of the chaplain to any prisoner who appears to require his special notice. In cases of danger or difficulty which appear to him to require it, he will have power to call in additional medical assistance, and he must not perform any serious operation without a previous consultation with another medical practitioner, except under circumstances not admitting of delay, such circumstances to be recorded in the register or journal. Where he considers it necessary to apply any painful test to a prisoner to detect malingering or otherwise, he must only apply such test by authority of an order from the visiting committee of the prison, or from a prison commissioner. The governor of the prison is to call the attention of the medical officer to any prisoner whose state of mind or body appears to require attention, to notify to him cases of illness, to deliver to him a daily list of prisoners in punishment cells, and to carry into effect his written directions respecting alterations of the treatment or discipline of any such prisoners. By sect. 4 of the Canal Boats Act (40 & 41 Vict. c. 60), it is provided that where any sanitary authority within whose district a canal, or any part of a canal, is situate, is informed that a person on a canal boat is suffering from an infectious disorder, such authority shall cause such steps to be taken as may, by the certificate of their medical officer of health, or of any other legally qualified practitioner, appear requisite for preventing the said disorder from spreading. Three Bills for amending the Medical Acts have been before the House, but as no progress was made with any one of them, there was not any discussion on the questions involved. Looking to the result of certain legal decisions, it would be well to insert a clause in any similar Bill introduced next Session to the effect that in prosecutions under sect. 40 of the Medical Act, the absence of the name of any person from the Medical Register, shall (as in the case of the Law List) be evidence, until the contrary be made to appear, that such person is possessed of no qualification entitling him to registration. Upon an appeal to the Exchequer Division of the High Court of Justice, it was held by Cleasby, B., and Hawkins, J., that where a person possessed of no qualification entitling him to registration describes himself by such a title as "Doctor of Medicine of the Metropolitan Medical College of New York," and so holds himself out to the world, it is a question of fact for the magistrate to decide whether there has been any wilful and false pretence within the meaning of sect. 40 of the Medical Act. In a recent case, where a defendant had covenanted with a medical man not to practise as a physician or surgeon within certain limits, it was argued, on a motion for an injunction to restrain him from so practising, that he had only practised midwifery, and that such a practice did not fall within the terms of the agreement. The injunction was granted, but notice of appeal was given. For the present, therefore, medical men will do well to see that their assistants bind themselves not to carry on the profession of a physician, surgeon, or accoucheur. The Apothecaries' Company have again sued successfully in several instances for penalties against persons practising without their licence. A F.R.C.S.E. has recovered in the Superior Courts 50*l.* for a first, and 20*l.* for a subsequent operation, together with 75 guineas for 75 visits, as not being unreasonable charges. An action has been brought by the medical officer of a provincial union against a newspaper, for libel in publishing a report of proceedings at a meeting of the guardians at which ex parte charges of misconduct were made against him; and a verdict in his favour was upheld, on the ground that although the conduct of poor-law medical officers is matter of public interest, yet that the guardians should, in their discretion, close their doors when making ex parte statements against one of their officers; and that if they do on such an occasion admit a reporter, he is not justified in making public any of such statements.

Another new Army Warrant has been issued, the text of which will be found in the latter part of the present volume. By this the Medical Service of the Army is incorporated as a distinct branch of the Service.

The Local Government Board (England) have issued instructions that where sanitary authorities propose to make joint appointments of medical officers of health or of inspectors of nuisances for two or more sanitary districts, each of the authorities proposing to combine should pass a resolution agreeing to combine with the other authorities in the appointment of the same person, and transmit to the Board the arrangement arrived at as to salary, and the proportion to be borne by each authority. The Board will then, if they sanction the proposal, issue an order providing for the mode of election, and prescribing the tenure of office and duties of the officer; and also for his qualification, in the case of a medical officer of health. In a circular by the Board to the metropolitan boards of guardians, the guardians are advised to make arrangements with the medical officers of health, and district medical officers, whereby the vaccination officer may be informed of any outbreak of small-pox which may occur within their respective districts, and that medical practitioners generally should be invited to give him similar information. The Board, having found that the annual reports of the medical officers of health conveyed very little of the information which they most desired, have issued detailed instructions for preparing the same, with forms for statistical tables to be appended to them. The instructions dwell specially upon the importance of the systematic inspections of the district which each medical officer is required to make periodically with the object of discovering the existence of unhealthy conditions; and upon the necessity of fully reporting the results of those inspections, and the steps taken to remove any unwholesome conditions discovered. In answer to an application from a board of guardians, the Local Government Board have intimated that a continuance of the arrangement whereby the same person is appointed medical officer of the union and medical officer of health, is open to serious objections. During the past year the Board have directed twenty medical inspections in regard to special outbreaks of infectious disease, to localities where particular kinds of such disease were of frequent occurrence, or to conditions likely to injure the public health. As the result of the annual vaccination inspection by the Board, special awards of money have been made to the vaccinators in 743 districts, in recognition of the excellence of the work done, and of the careful observance of the rules pertaining to the office. Among those who failed to obtain an award, the failure was, in the great majority of instances, not due to their not having vaccinated in the prescribed manner, but was attributable to neglects of other kinds. The performance of vaccination according to the standard established by Mr. Marson is now the rule. The Board have approved, during the past year, of the appointment of 14 medical officers of health and 6 inspectors of nuisances by rural authorities, and of 56 medical officers of health, and 45 inspectors of nuisances by urban authorities. The total number of appointments sanctioned by the Board, now existing, is 394 medical officers of health and 507 inspectors of nuisances, by rural authorities; 387 medical officers of health and 319 inspectors of nuisances, by urban authorities; and 44 medical officers of health and 17 inspectors of nuisances by combined authorities. Medical officers of health and inspectors of nuisances have also been appointed by 45 out of 46 port sanitary authorities. The appointment of analysts in nine additional cases has been approved. There have now been appointed 36 analysts by counties, 51 by boroughs and 39 by district boards and vestries in the metropolis. Of the 4233 medical officers whose appointments have been approved by the Board, 13 have been dismissed or required to resign, and 7 have been superannuated during the past year.

The hour of visit is 1 o'clock P.M. daily, when a physician and surgeon see the in-patients, and a similar arrangement holds good with regard to out-patients. The day for operations is Thursday, at 2 P.M. A large number of casualties are annually admitted, affording valuable opportunity for surgical practice. The central position of the Hospital, and the new and compact school premises containing every necessary appliance, offer special advantages to students.

The Hospital is divided into Medical, Surgical, Clinical, Ophthalmic, Uterine, and Venereal Wards, independently of separate rooms for special cases. Wards containing fifty beds are devoted to Ophthalmic Surgery, and the patients in these have their special dressers and reporters appointed in the usual manner. About 2500 Ophthalmic cases are seen annually as out-patients. Recently the Eye Department of the Hospital has been extended, and a room has been fitted up for operating on the Eye, and another provided with an Ophthalmoscope for the use of Students.

ROYAL SCHOOL OF MINES.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE AND ART, JERMYN STREET. S.W.—Established 1851.

The chief object and distinctive character of this Institution (to which everything else is made subsidiary) is to give a practical direction to the course of scientific study. Although the education provided in it will not of itself qualify the student to undertake the direction of mining and other technical operations, yet the knowledge which he may acquire of the principles of the sciences on which the arts are respectively based will, in combination with future training, render him in the highest degree competent, not only to engage in any special branch of industry, but to promote its further development. The mode of instruction is by lectures, by written and oral examinations, and by practical teaching in the laboratories and drawing-office. Regist., Mr. T. Reeks.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF CHEMISTRY.

Exhibition Road, South Kensington. S.W.

The Royal College of Chemistry is the property of the Government, and its spacious and well-furnished Laboratories are used for the instruction of the pupils of the Government School of Mines. The instruction in this Institution is under the superintendence of Professor E. Frankland, and consists of—

I. A course of Practical Analysis in the Laboratories.

II. Two courses of Lectures on General Chemistry.

III. An advanced Laboratory course for technical applications of Chemical Analysis and for Chemical Research.

The Laboratory Instruction, which is divided into a qualitative and quantitative course, and which is conducted in separate rooms, commences with experimental exercises, calculated to make the pupil practically acquainted with the general properties of the simple substances. The next subjects of his study are the analytical properties of the elements, and of their most important compounds.

Each laboratory student works independently; there are no classes. All operations are superintended by the Professor and his assistants. A table, with drawers, cupboard, and shelves, is appropriated to every pupil. The Institution supplies gas, fuel, and re-agents. Larger and more expensive instruments, such as air-pumps, thermometers, barometers, condensers, large evaporating dishes, &c., may be had on loan from the Laboratory. The student has to provide himself only with the apparatus specified in the Laboratory Regulations.

The courses of Lectures are delivered in the Theatre at the College. They consist of 70 Lectures, and treat of Mineral and Organic Chemistry, with especial reference to their application in the arts and manufactures.

ROYAL INSTITUTION OF GREAT BRITAIN, ALBEMARLE-STREET, PICCADILLY, W.—Established under a Charter granted by his Majesty King George the Third, in the year 1800. Enlarged and confirmed by an Act of Parliament in the year 1810. Pres., The Duke of Northumberland; Treas., Mr. G. Busk; Sec., Mr. W. Spottiswoode; Prof. of Nat. Philos., Dr. J. The Royal Institution is an association of individuals who are attached to Science, and desirous to promote its advancement.

Its chief objects are—

1. To promote scientific and literary research.
2. To teach the principles of inductive and experimental science.
3. To exhibit the application of these principles to the various arts of life; and
4. To afford opportunities for study.

The Royal Institution comprises—

I. Two Laboratories for the promotion of chemical and physical science, by experiments and original investigations. In the Physical Laboratory the researches of Professor Davy, of Professor Faraday, and of Professor Tyndall were conducted. The laws of Electro-chemical Decomposition,—the Decomposition of the fixed Alkalies,—the establishment of the nature of Chlorine,—the philosophy of Flame,—the Condensibility of many Gases,—the science of Magneto-Electricity,—the twofold Magnetism of Matter, comprehending all known substances,—the Magnetism of Gases,—the relation of Magnetism and Light,—the physical effects of pressure on Diamagnetic Action,—the absorption and radiation of heat by gases and vapours,—the transparency of our atmosphere, and the opacity of its aqueous vapour to radiant heat,—and the atmosphere as a vehicle of sound,—are the results of investigations carried on in the Physical Laboratory of the Royal Institution during the last seventy years. In the Chemical Laboratory, formed out of the lower lecture room, Professor Frankland made some of his most important researches in organic chemistry. These Laboratories were rebuilt in 1872 by the liberality of the Members, in order that the Institution should not be inferior to other places in the means by which Original Discovery can be carried on; and the liberal and permanent Endowment of the Professorships is now the chief thing wanting to ensure the promotion of Scientific Research.

II. Public Lectures intended to supply that which books or private instruction can rarely afford:—Experimental illustration and detailed descriptions of matters connected with science or art. They usually comprehend a short course at Christmas, and six or more courses before and after Easter; the Season lasting from the middle of January to the middle of June. The subjects of these lectures are generally some of the different branches of inductive science—as mechanics, chemistry, heat, light, electricity, astronomy, geology, botany, and physiology. Courses are also occasionally given on subjects of general interest, as on literature, the fine arts, and music.

III. Weekly Meetings of the Members of the Institution.—These are held on every Friday evening during the Session, and the members have the privilege of introducing two friends to them by tickets. The object of these meetings is to bring together men of science and literature, and to afford opportunities of communicating, by discourses in the theatre, either new views or new applications of known truths, and of demonstrating by experiment, and familiarizing by description, new results which have been recently recorded in the scientific memoirs of philosophical societies. Abstracts of these Discourses, prepared by the speakers, are printed in the "Proceedings of the Royal Institution," a copy of which is sent to the members. Seven volumes (1851 to 1875) are ready, price, to members, 7s. 6d., to non-members, 10s. 6d. each volume, bound. The numbers for 1863 to 1877 (two each year) are sold for 1s. 6d. or 3s. each.

IV. A Model Room, containing scientific apparatus of historical interest, and of present use.—The chief object of this collection is to furnish apparatus for research and illustrations for the lectures and the Friday evening discourses.

V. A Library of about 37,000 volumes, including works of science,—the transactions of the principal British and Foreign academies and scientific institutions,—British history and topography, including the ancient chronicles, eminent modern historians, county histories, and many rare publications relating to these subjects,—works on literature, art, and antiquarian research,—the best editions of the Greek and Latin Classics and the Fathers of the Church,—British and Foreign literature,—and an extensive collection of historical and miscellaneous tracts, commencing with the sixteenth century.

The Classified Catalogue of the Library (with a synopsis of contents and indexes of authors and subjects) by Mr. B. Vincent, the keeper of the library, is sold (bound) to the members of the Royal Institution for 10s., to the public for 15s. A list of the additions is printed annually, and sent to the members.

In the Upper Library will be found a collection of Encyclopædias, Dictionaries, and Scientific Text-books, arranged for immediate reference.

VI. A Reading-room for Study.—In this apartment will be found many series of English, French, German, and Italian scientific Memoirs and Journals, and a great number of works on the natural, medical, and mathematical sciences.

VII. A Newspaper Room, in which the principal Journals, Magazines, and Reviews, English and Foreign, are regularly provided.

A Circulating Library is subscribed to, in order to afford the members an opportunity of seeing the newest books as soon as published.

 The Reading and Newspaper Rooms are open every day from Nine in the morning till Eleven in the evening. The Upper Library is open every day from Ten in the morning till Ten in the evening, except on the Fridays during the season, when it is closed at Four in the afternoon.

Members are admitted to ALL Lectures delivered in the Institution, to the Libraries, and to the weekly evening meetings. They have the right of voting at the monthly meetings; they may also introduce by tickets two friends to each of the weekly evening meetings as long as there is room, and their families have the privilege of attending the Lectures at a reduced charge. And for every additional subscription of Twenty Guineas at one time, or Three Guineas per annum, each Member is entitled to introduce personally, or by a written order, one visitor to each of the public lectures.

This Fund was instituted in the year 1836 to afford immediate pecuniary relief to distressed qualified members of the profession, their widows or orphans; and to grant annuities to the aged or disabled among them. The extent to which these objects have been attained may be estimated by the fact that during the past year £1379 was granted in relief of urgent distress to 139 applicants, to the majority of whom no other resource was open, and who had dependent upon them upwards of 217 children; and that besides this, the Fund has distributed £712 amongst 37 annuitants. In addition to the relief afforded to the aged, blind, sick, and helpless, this Fund has aided in the bringing up and placing in situations of orphans, has given timely help to struggling widows and daughters, by which they have tided over temporary difficulties which would otherwise have overwhelmed them; and has, in many instances, enabled medical men, reduced to poverty by misfortune or illness, to resume practice and support their families.

There are also in connexion with the Fund Six Cottages at Providence Place, Chippenham (the gift of Mr. Bailey); these are available for aged or disabled members of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, or their widows, having an annuity from the Fund, of at least £10 per annum.

The Committee earnestly appeal to the Profession at large for renewed aid, by which the benefits of the Fund may be extended, and beg to direct attention to the principles on which the Fund is managed. The applicants for relief or annuities have not the trouble and expense of a canvass, or the pain attending publicity. Relief is given as promptly as possible. The only expenses are for printing, postage, and stationery, and the Collector's percentage. The Committee meet at four p.m. on the last Tuesday of every month, except September, to receive applications; and when the evidence as to character and the reality of the distress is thoroughly satisfactory, a sum proportionate to the urgency of the case and the means at the disposal of the Committee, is voted, and at once sent by the Treasurer. Annuitants are elected by the Committee on their merits only.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer, Hon. Secretaries, or Collector, or by any of the Members of Committee in London or Honorary Local Secretaries elsewhere.

The College was established in 1855, in order to provide an Asylum and Pensions for duly qualified Medical Men, and the Widows of such, in reduced circumstances; and a School for the Sons of duly qualified Medical Men.

The Asylum contains twenty-four residents, who are called Pensioners, each of whom is provided with three furnished rooms, and receives a pension of £21 a year, with an allowance of coals. In addition to the resident Pensioners, there are twenty-six Pensioners who have Annuities of £21, without residences. Pensioners must be legally qualified Medical Men, who have been in independent practice in England or Wales for five years from the date of their diploma, licence, or degree, or the Widows of such. They must not be less than sixty years of age, at the time of their application for admission as Candidates, and their yearly income must not exceed £60. They will be elected in the first instance to Annuities only, and will succeed to residences in turn, as vacancies arise among the residents, providing that their circumstances are such as to render them fitting inmates of the Asylum.

The School contains two hundred resident pupils, the sons of Medical Men, fifty of whom, being the Foundation Scholars, are educated, boarded, clothed, and maintained, at the expense of the Institution; while the remainder (with the exception of a few Exhibitioners, who pay lower rates,) are charged £48 a year each if under 14, and £51 a year if 14 and upwards, for an education of the highest class, board, washing, use of books, &c.

There is a Chapel for Divine Service according to the ritual of the Church of England.

The Pensioners and Foundation Scholars are elected by the Governors, voting by ballot.

Donors of ten guineas in not more than two payments, and Collectors of twenty guineas, are life-governors of the College; subscribers of one guinea annually are governors during the continuance of their subscription. Subscriptions are due in advance on the 1st of January in each year.

Subscriptions received by the Bankers, Goslings and Sharpe, 19, Fleet-street; the Members of Council: the Hon. Local Secs.; and by the Secretary, at the Office, 37, Soho-square. (See also page 1330.)

SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF MEDICAL MEN, 53, BERNERS-STREET OXFORD-STREET. W.—Instituted 1788; incorporated by Royal Charter, 1864. Pres., Sir G. This Society was formed in the year 1788, by Drs. T. Denman, R. Denison, A. Douglas, J. Sims, and J. Squire, and Messrs. W. Chamberlaine and T. It unites the advantages of a Provident with those of a Benevolent Society. It is Provident, as, by the small yearly subscription of Two Guineas the Members do, through it, protect their own families from destitution, should they unexpectedly need it; and it is Benevolent, as its benefits are conferred only on those who are left in indigent circumstances.

The Society has been greatly assisted by legacies and contributions from Members and others, and has especially to acknowledge the gracious patronage of various members of the Royal Family.

The permanent efficiency of the Society depends on the maintenance of a due proportion between the available income and the claims made on the funds. Computations have been made by experienced actuaries on all the points susceptible of calculation by way of average.

The experience of ninety years has fully proved the need that existed for this Society, for the last Report shows that 188 widows, and 275 children of Members of the Society (comprised in 197 families relieved), have been placed in comfort by an aggregate sum of above £95,358, paid in half-yearly sums. Many of these recipients were in a state of absolute poverty, when the Society stepped in to succour them.

In the year 1876, £2885 10s. was distributed among fifty-eight widows and eleven orphans.

Great care has been taken, in the management of its resources, to secure the means of affording permanently such relief as the Society provides for those whose unfortunate condition renders assistance needful; and the good which it has accomplished has proved the wisdom and benevolence of those who originally planned the Society, and the prudence and efficiency with which its affairs have since been conducted.

The Society's affairs are managed by a President, twelve Vice-Presidents, three Treasurers, and twenty-four Directors, who are elected by the Members in April, and whose services are gratuitous.

All legally qualified Members of the Profession, residing within the County of Middlesex, or WITHIN THE LONDON DISTRICT POST, are eligible for proposal; the mode of admission is by ballot.

Proposal Papers, and other communications for the Court of Directors, should be sent to the Secretary three weeks before the first Wednesday in the months of January, April, July, and September. Laws, Lists, and Forms of Proposal may be obtained from the Secretary, and will be sent by Post on receipt of a Stamp.

The Secretary attends at the Office, 53, Berners-street, every Wednesday and Friday, from four to five p.m.
